Food giveaway tops $1 million; no Patty

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The value of the food ransom offered by Randolph Hearst for his daughter's freedom passed $1 million Friday without bringing a response from her kidnapers.

Another 35,000 bags of free groceries worth some $300,000 at supermarket prices were distributed in the fourth day of the "People in Need" food program, set up by Hearst at the demand of the Symbionese Liberation Army, which kidnaped Patricia Hearst Feb. 4.

The Friday distribution brought the total retail value of food given away over the four days to more than $1 million, with an estimated 120,000 bags being handed out at distribution centers dotting low income districts of the San Francisco Bay Area.

But still there was no word from the SLA, which sent its last communication more than two weeks ago, in spite of pleas from Hearst and his wife, Catherine, and food program officials that the kidnapers keep in touch.

A spokesman for the Hearst family said donations from the public have reached nearly $100,000, ranging from a single $2,000 contribution to a number of $2 checks. He said all the donations are being held by Hearst because "he hasn't decided what to do" with them.

The lines at San Francisco distribution centers Friday were swollen because public transportation was shut down by a city employees' strike, preventing many persons from getting to work or school.

"I couldn't get to work because of the bus situation, so here I am," said one woman standing in line for the food which the SLA had demanded for the poor.

Alioto calls state of emergency in strike

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto declared a state of emergency Friday after union leaders rejected his proposed settlement of the crippling strike by 10,000 city employees.

"I have signed this proclamation to pave the way for weekend meetings around the clock to settle this labor dispute," the mayor said.

THE proclamation effectively suspends all sections of the city charter which had prevented the Board of Supervisors from negotiating directly with union leaders or holding private executive sessions.

Alioto's action was taken with the concurrence of Dianne Feinstein, board president, a mayor's spokesman said.

A spokesman for the four striking unions said representatives are willing to negotiate, but no time had been set.

After the two-day strike stalled the city's transportation, hospitals and other services, Alioto proposed a 5 per cent across-the-board cost of living increase for 11,900 city workers plus a dental care plan to be phased in over three years.

But John F. Crowley, labor council secretary, later rejected the offer saying the strike would "continue in full" until an equitable settlement can be reached.

CITING the high cost of living, he said, "We believe that approximately an 8 per cent across-the-board increase from the Board of Supervisors might be acceptable, which is the cost of the

Tax findings to give President cause to quit office, says Mills

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said Friday the Joint Congressional Committee studying President Nixon's tax returns will issue findings that will give more cause for his resignation than any alleged connection with Watergate.

Mills said the information, to be released within two months, will in his opinion give reason for Nixon to resign. The committee is studying all aspects of the returns, including a controversial deduction for Nixon's donation of his vice presidential papers to the National Archives.

In Washington the White House took strong issue with Mills' statement.

Asks death penalty Nixon alarmed by kidnappings

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — President Nixon ordered Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe Friday to press Congress for reinstatement of the death penalty for kidnappings in which the victim is killed.

Nixon's chief of staff, Alexander M. Haig, told reporters the President had "conveyed his concern on the increased kidnappings to Saxbe" at a White House dinner Thursday night and again Friday at a Cabinet meeting.

The Supreme Court ruled June 29, 1972, that the death penalty was "cruel and unusual punishment" forbidden by the Constitution because of the hit-or-miss manner in which various state laws

Sharp temblor jolts Southland

United Press International

A sharp earthquake jolted a wide area of Southern California at dinnertime Friday, and caused a lot of excitement among tremor conscious residents. But there were no reports of injuries or serious property damage.

Long Beach police reported receiving more than a score of calls about the quake, mostly from residents in the Bixby Knolls and North Long Beach areas. Police units checked for damage but found none.

The Caltech Seismological Lab said the temblor had a magnitude of 4.5 on the Richter scale at 5:32 p.m. The epicenter was 2 or 3 miles from Newhall in the northern San Fernando valley, about 40 miles from downtown Los Angeles.

Persons in Long Beach described the shock as a mild tremor, police said.

But according to Dr. James Whitcomb, Caltech seismologist, Friday night's quake was one of the largest aftershocks of the killer Sylmar quake of Feb. 9, 1971, which had a magnitude of 6.4.

That quake hit just after 6 o'clock in the morning and caused 62 deaths and about $233 million in property damage.

Telephone service in the Newhall area was temporarily disrupted by the Friday quake.

Alarmed residents called police, newspaper and wire service offices in a radius of 40 miles. The quake was felt in Orange County.

Fair skies due for Southland

Rain clouds dissipated in the Southland late Friday, paving the way for what weathermen say will be a fair weekend with high temperatures near 60 degrees.

But evidence of the two-day storm, which dumped 1.98 inches of rain in Long Beach, still is clearly visible in the mountain areas, where snow crept down to the 2,000-foot level and chains are required on most highways.

Snow also fell in Bakersfield. Officials said the city last had snow this late in the season during March 1962.

The main route from Los Angeles to Bakersfield and San Francisco — Interstate 5 — was closed for more than six hours early Friday following several minor accidents blamed on slippery roads.

The Highway Patrol said the route was closed to truck traffic at the Grapevine cutoff about 3:15 a.m. and to all traffic about two hours later.

When the north-south artery was reopened about 9:40 a.m., patrol cars escorted convoys over the ridge.

Snow drifts were reported up to two feet deep at Lake Arrowhead, 11 inches at Frazier Park and seven inches at Lebec. Weathermen said mountains in San Diego and Santa Barbara counties also were blanketed.

Meanwhile, the Southland rainfall spurred coastal warnings and small craft advisories from Monterey to the Mexican border. Forecasters said the winds and swells should clear by this morning, giving way to fair seas.

The storm, which brought the season rainfall total in Long Beach to 11.86 inches — compared to 15.19 inches at the same time last year — also was blamed for several power failures, road closures and traffic snarls.

Arabs reported ready to lift embargo Sunday

CAIRO (UPI) — Arab oil ministers will announce in Cairo Sunday a lifting of the embargo on oil exports to the United States, the semiofficial newspaper Al Ahram reported in today's editions.

Arab sources in Beirut said earlier that the oil ministers would meet in Tripoli on Wednesday and that there were growing indications it might not result in an end to the boycott.

IN A DISPATCH from Riyadh, capital of Saudi Arabia, Al Ahram said:

"Arab oil ministers will decide Sunday at their meeting in Cairo to lift the embargo which had been imposed on the export of oil to the United States."

This will be in accordance with a secret resolution taken at a summit conference of four Arab heads-of-state held in Algiers last month, the newspaper said.

The summit brought together Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, Saudi Arabian King Faisal, Algerian President Houari Boumedienne and Syrian President Hafez Assad.

AFTER THE summit, the Egyptian and Saudi Arabian foreign ministers traveled to Washington carrying what they described then as "pleasant news" to President Nixon. The nature of this news was not divulged.

Al Ahram said the oil ministers conference was originally scheduled to open Sunday in the Libyan capital of Tripoli.

But, the newspaper said, the Saudi Arabian and Egyptian governments decided to convene the gathering in Cairo. The newspaper did not explain the reason for the switch.

Earlier Friday, there was confusion concerning the site and date of the conference, and although Arab sources said it would open in Tripoli, Egyptian oil ministry officials said "no final decision had been reached."

The Arab sources also reported what they termed

FEO goof floods Conn. with gas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Energy Office (FEO) admitted Friday it allocated the state of Connecticut 21 million gallons more gasoline than it deserved for March. State officials said gasoline would be "flowing in the streets" if the error went uncorrected.

While some states were complaining that they were not receiving enough gasoline under the federal government's March allocation program, energy officials in Connecticut announced they were getting too much.

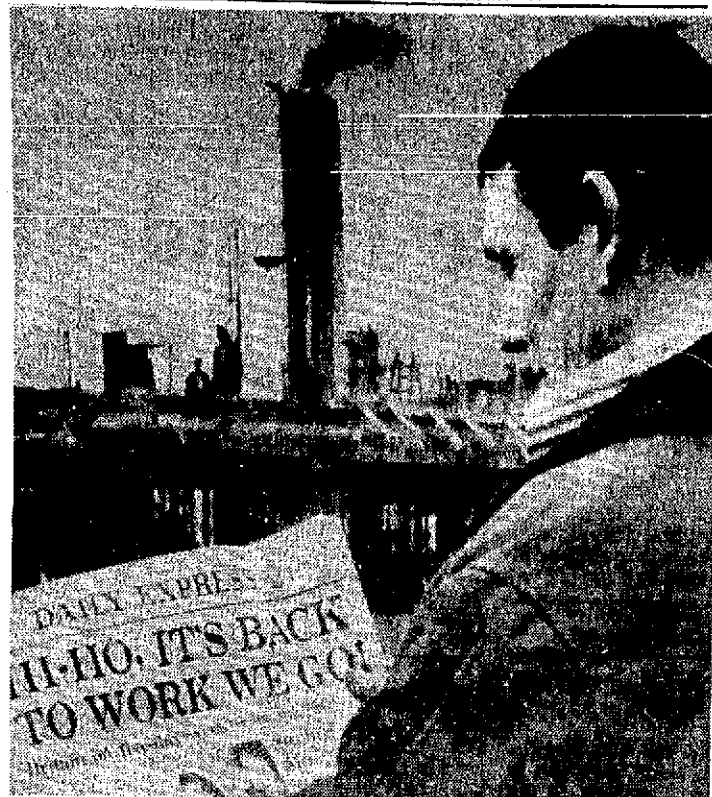

Asked about the allocation, FEO officials conceded they made a mistake. An FEO spokesman said the error was caused by "inflated figures supplied by state officials" on Connecticut's gas consumption. But state energy official Kenneth Woods blamed the error on FEO computations.

"If we were to have all the gasoline they say we're going to have, we would have it flowing in the streets," remarked Susan White, an aide in the state energy office.

Two seized in kidnap of boy

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — Two persons were arrested Friday night in the kidnaping of eight-year-old John Calzadilla of Dix Hills, N.Y., only hours after the boy's parents paid $50,000 in ransom and the boy was set free, the FBI said. FBI Director Clarence Kelley said complaints were being filed in Newark against Norberto Fernandez, 17, and his brother Eligio Fernandez, 19. They were charged with conspiring to violate the federal kidnaping statutes in abducting the boy Wednesday and transporting him from New York to New Jersey. Meanwhile, a federal judge in Atlanta sharply reduced the bond of a man and wife accused of kidnaping Atlanta Constitution Editor Reg Murphy and criticized the government's treatment of one of them. The couple has pleaded innocent. The judge's criticism of government attorneys came after he was told the FBI had obtained a statement from one of the suspects without his attorney present.

Extra housing funds

WASHINGTON — The Senate voted Friday to add $1.4 billion to a $9-billion housing bill already under fire from the Nixon administration as too large. The increase added categorical funds to the bill for various programs to be used in fiscal 1975 starting July 1. They were sponsored by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass. President Nixon opposes continuation of categorical urban programs and has recommended instead a lump-sum, revenue-sharing approach.

Jet-tragedy blame

NEW YORK — The Turkish jumbo jet that crashed near Paris Sunday, killing a record 346 persons, apparently, had not had its rear cargo door completely modified in accord with safety recommendations of the manufacturer, sources close to the inquiry said Friday. The tentative finding strengthened the view of investigators that loss of the DC10's door in flight (it was found seven miles from the crash scene) was the likeliest cause of the crash.

Rent frozen, food profits cut

LONDON — Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Laborites froze rents and cut food profits Friday at the start of an all-out drive against zooming prices. The new government's swift intervention followed orders for the restoration of full-time working throughout Britain for the first time this year. The country's firms and factories have been functioning on a three-day week because of fuel shortages aggravated by the new settled strike of coal miners. And in a preview of Laborite policy, one of Wilson's key ministers urged greater state participation in, and control of, North Sea oil and gas resources.

Spain, church conflict

MADRID — Dissident Bishop Antonio Anoveros took his case before Spain's Roman Catholic hierarchy Friday and Gen. Francisco Franco met with his cabinet, reportedly prepared to break the government's concordat with the Vatican. After the cabinet meeting, the government gave no indication whether a decision was reached on the matter, which has inspired the government to threaten the bishop's indictment or exile because of his sympathy for the Basque minority. The case has raised the possibility of the first rupture in church-state relations since Franco came to power in 1939.

Soviet fuel credits

WASHINGTON — Comptroller General Elmer Staats ruled Friday that the Export-Import Bank has no authority to provide $6.1 billion in credit for an energy-development project in the Soviet Union. Staats made the ruling in response to complaints by Sen. Richard Schweiker, who contends the low-interest loans should be used to find more energy sources in the U.S. The Export-Import Bank was created in 1945 to guarantee private loans and make direct loans to finance investments in the import-export trade.

Corporate politics

WASHINGTON — Corporations and their officers convicted of making illegal contributions to political campaigns must report this to their stockholders, the Securities and Exchange Commission said Friday. So far nine corporations have been accused of making contributions during the 1972 presidential campaign — most of them to President Nixon's re-election effort — and at least one corporation officer has been named in each accusation. In addition, the office of Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski has said a number of other cases are being investigated. Federal law prohibits any contribution or expenditure by a corporation in connection with a presidential campaign, as well as congressional campaigns, and imposes a maximum penalty of $5,000 for violations.

AMA hits controls

WASHINGTON — The American Medical Association said Friday the administration's attempt to extend economic controls over the health industry amounts to a blatant effort to restructure the nation's medical system. James Sammons, speaking for the AMA, joined spokesmen for other health industry groups in opposing any extension of wage and price controls. The Nixon administration proposes to phase out all but controls on the health industry. The Economic Stabilization Act expires April 30 unless Congress acts to extend all or part of it.

Many Israelis and some newspapers, however, accused the government of exaggerating the emergency as a way to patch up political splits so Mrs. Meir could present her new cabinet Sunday.

Thieu retires generals

SAIGON — President Nguyen Van Thieu, in a major new move to strengthen his administration, retired 11 senior army generals Friday and appointed a dozen new ambassadors to key allied nations. Thieu also was reported considering a plan to develop Vietnam's post-war reconstruction by sending close aides to rich countries in search of additional aid.

General strike ends

ADDIS ABABA — Trade unions and government representatives agreed Friday on a compromise solution to end the first general strike in Ethiopia's history and restore peace to the country after three weeks of civilian rioting and a military revolt.

"There is a meeting of minds on all points," said Fisseha Tsion Takie, the general secretary of the 85,000-strong Ethiopian Trade Unions.

He said the compromise agreement on the unions' 16 demands, which centered around a 200 per cent wage increase for low-paid workers, were submitted to the prime minister and the unions' general council for formal approval.

Entertainers pay respects to Sol Hurok

Combined News Services

Sol Hurok filled New York's Carnegie Hall for his last time Friday. Nearly 2,000 persons, including many artists from the music world who performed there under his aegis, attended the funeral for the impresario, who died Tuesday at the age of 85.

"He was not named Sol for nothing," eulogized singer Marian Anderson, who praised Hurok as a man with a "wise and understanding heart," like the Biblical Solomon.

The service also featured a violin solo by Isaac Stern.

The rose-bedecked coffin and bier occupied center stage during the 30-minute service.

In addition to Stern, Peerce and Miss Anderson, the cultural VIPs at the funeral included composer-conductor Leonard Bernstein; Sir Rudolph Bing and Schuyler Chapin, the former and current heads of the New York City Metropolitan Opera; pianist Van Cliburn; opera singer Robert Peters; classical guitarist Andres Segovia, and Ed Sullivan.

Millionairess Candace Mossler Garrison has filed for divorce from her third husband, Barnett Garrison, and asked that she get back her last name of Mossler.

In her divorce petition filed in Chicago, Mrs. Garrison claims she has been kept from her husband by his family since he was seriously injured in an April, 1973, fall from the third floor of his home.

Mrs. Garrison and her nephew, Melvin Lane Powers, were charged with the 1964 murder of Mrs. Garrison's second husband, Jacques Mossler. They were acquitted in the case March 6, 1966, after a lengthy trial.

Counselor

Dean Burch, former chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, was sworn in Friday as a top aide to President Nixon with his old political mentor, Sen. Barry Goldwater, looking on.

Burch, 46, took the oath of office as presidential counselor from Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist, like Burch a native of Arizona and a Goldwater associate. Burch managed Goldwater's 1964 presidential campaign.

Nixon said Burch will serve as the White House liaison to the government's regulatory agencies — like the FCC and the Securities and Exchange Commission — and will advise the President on political matters. Burch is a former GOP national chairman.

New York model Karen Graham has married a former Chicago businessman, ending reports she planned to wed British television personality David Frost.

Miss Graham and Del Coleman were married in a ceremony Thursday in the office of Marshall Korshak, the Chicago revenue director.

Frost, according to news accounts, had been planning to marry Miss Graham in the near future. Frost's planned marriage to entertainer Diahann Carroll also was called off two years ago at the last minute.

Thant

Former United Nations Secretary-General U Thant was reported "doing well" Friday following surgery at Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center's Harkness Pavilion in New York.

The hospital spokesman who gave Thant's condition would not disclose the nature of the surgery. Thant was in the hospital last November for the removal of what was described at the time as a benign tumor.

He retired as secretary general in 1972 and has been living at his home in Harrison, N.Y.

Adoptive parents lose girl in legal battle

A 23-month-old adopted child was taken Friday from the only parents she has ever known and placed in a foster home while preparations are made to return her to her natural mother.

It was the latest setback in a long and bitter legal battle by Richard and Marie Horn of Ypsilanti, Mich., who have spent more than $5,000 in legal fees in a desperate effort to keep little Rhonda.

"It was one of the hardest things they ever had to do in their lives," said Lois March, supervisor of the children's unit of the state Department of Social Services, who handled the child's transfer. "But they realized it was necessary and probably the only chance they have of winning the child back."

The girl was born April 12, 1972, to Rita Kay Harris, who was unmarried and agreed to give up the baby for adoption under Michigan's direct-consent adoption law. Two months later, Miss Harris said she gave the child away "under severe and extreme emotional distress" and wanted her back.

Her plea was upheld in Washtenaw County Juvenile Court, and appeals of that decision by the Horns were overruled three times in district court and once in the Michigan Court of Appeals.

Although the Horns surrendered the child, they have not given up their battle. After leaving Rhonda they returned to Ann Arbor to consult with their attorney.

"We can't just kick her out of our lives," Horn explained earlier. "We love her. We want to keep her. We don't want her to cry every night for us."

Nixon on stage

President Nixon runs the government better than he plays the piano, according to Pearl Bailey, who pressed the chief executive into a nervous version of "Wild Irish Rose" after vetoing "Home on the Range" at a White House party.

But the Nixon-Bailey team won rave reviews from assembled Cabinet officers and governors Thursday night at one of the liveliest parties the White House has had in years.

"I haven't enjoyed an evening so much in years. I laughed so much I cried," said Vice President Gerald Ford.

The President was clearly taken by surprise when Miss Bailey asked him to accompany her singing. The President started playing "Home on the Range," but stopped when Miss Bailey said, "Mr. President, I want to sing a song. I don't want to ride a horse."

The audience roared, and Nixon swung into "My Wild Irish Rose" and the duo finished with "God Bless America."

Cancer tests

The 12-year-old son of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy entered Boston Children's Hospital late Friday for anticancer drug treatments in hopes of insuring that the bone cancer which caused amputation of his right leg will not recur.

A spokesman in Kennedy's office in Washington said visits would be "routine and predictable" every third weekend for an indefinite period.

The hospital and the boy's doctors have found no evidence the cancer has recurred. Doctors were quoted as saying there was an 80 per cent chance for a complete cure.

Sailor who bared spying feels career 'washed up'

Yeoman Charles Radford, who has admitted passing secret data from the White House to the Pentagon, says he feels his Navy career is "washed up" and he may leave the service.

Radford, who was transferred to Salem, Ore., after his role in passing information from the National Security Council to top Navy officials became suspect, said the label of overzealousness attached to him by an admiral involved in the investigation "sticks in my craw."

Radford, 30, recently testified before the Senate Armed Services Committee on his involvement in the passing of NSC papers to admirals while he was assigned to the Security Council in 1971.

He has admitted giving some papers to the Navy, but has denied other allegations that he leaked information to columnist Jack Anderson.

Radford said in an interview, "I just sort of feel my career in the Navy has been ruined. Washed up. My integrity

Frederic Proctor Jr., 52-year-old heir to the Procter and Gamble soap fortune, was sentenced to three years in prison in Orlando, Fla., Friday for possession of marijuana.

U.S. District Court Judge Richard Duncan handed down the sentence after revealing an investigation had found Proctor had been smoking marijuana for six years.

Proctor was arrested last October when federal agents raided his home at Cape Canaveral.

St. Edward's University officials said Friday in Austin, Texas, that an honorary Doctor of Fine Arts degree had been awarded actress Mercedes McCambridge.

The presentation cited the actress, who won an Academy Award in 1940 for her role in "All the King's Men," for her contributions to the arts and education.

Miss McCambridge is in Austin for a two-week run of "The Desk Set," which opens March 12 at St. Edwards.

Hahn predicts 25-cent bus fares in county by April 1

By NOEL SWANN
Our L.A. Bureau

Claiming all obstacles would be overcome "one way or another," Supervisor Kenneth Hahn Friday predicted a flat 25-cent weekday fare would be a reality on the Southern California Rapid Transit District and six city bus lines by April 1.

Hahn, however, conceded that to make the plan work and to insure its continued success it would be necessary to provide more than the limited $3-million a month subsidy approved in principle by supervisors only for the three months ending June 30.

Hahn noted that some difficulties already had been overcome but added it would be imperative to improve service, implement a proper grid system, eliminate duplicate lines and extend the subsidy beyond June 30 — elements not included in the present subsidy concept.

However, he expressed optimism that these difficulties would be brushed aside as the success of the program grows and becomes a "model for the nation."

Hahn said his firm belief that the program could start by April 1 was based on a number of factors, including the recent assurance from federal energy czar William Simon that the RTD would get 400,000 gallons of extra diesel fuel a month to power additional buses for the expected passenger increase.

Also he said the RTD had assured him it could put into service 150 extra buses now sidelined in their garages because of their rundown state.

ALSO HE said the RTD hopes to rustle up at least another 50 old buses across the nation to use in the 25-cent plan.

In this regard he made two new disclosures. First was that the county subsidy coming before supervisors Tuesday for ratification now would include expenses for starting up the program and buying or leasing equipment. The second was that the RTD had been assured of a federal grant to refurbish the old buses.

When the concept of the county subsidy was approved in principle by supervisors March 28 the projected $3 million-a-month was supposed only to have made up the revenue deficit caused by lowering the fares to 25 cents. Because of the change in now also paying for equipment, the proposal may run into opposition from other supervisors.

HAHN ALSO cited as a reason for his optimism the fact that U.S. Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar had assured the county it would not be penalized under pending federal legislation dealing with transit grants. The upcoming legislation apparently demands that local government agencies continue paying any subsidies they may have made for public transportation as a condition of getting future federal transit grants.

Brinegar Thursday in a telegram to Supervisor James Hayes said he would make every effort to see that the legislation is written in such a way that the county would not be penalized.

Hahn acknowledged that the 25-cent fare program would probably run into trouble in the first few weeks with a lot of people waiting in lines. He said this would likely continue until extra buses were obtained, better schedules implemented and staggered work hours for government and industry employees put into effect.

He again predicted the 25-cent fare could attract as many as 900,000 extra passengers a day onto the RTD, which presently carries about 700,000. "I predict the public is ready to switch to buses and that the program will work and ultimately pay for itself," Hahn said.

HE SAID his predictions of success also are based on the more than 200 per cent increase in riders that occurred after the county agreed to subsidize a 10-cent Sunday fare program.

Under questioning Hahn said he did not agree that the Sunday program would have been a failure if there had been no shortage of gasoline and if stations had remained open Sundays. He said the Sunday program helped many of the poor and those without cars, but had no ready answer to the statement that many of the extra Sunday riders were persons going to the Santa Anita racetrack.

Reporters pointed out a number of negative aspects to the proposal, including:

An apparent increase in gasoline supplies encouraging people to stay in their cars; the obvious need to continue the subsidy beyond June 30, bearing in mind the county is facing a financial shortfall next year; the lack of adequate buses; the apparent reluctance of RTD officials to move ahead swiftly; the inability of authorities to get car pools going in large numbers, even in the face of a fuel crisis; and the fact that the RTD already faces a $7-million operating deficit in 1974-75, and that it will need extra funds to pay for additional manpower buses for the increased program.

Hahn however brushed all these points aside saying, "One way or another, these obstacles all will be overcome. He also vowed that he would work to inject revenue sharing subsidies greater than so far proposed to get the whole program moving.

Gas crisis cuts traffic by 9 pct.

SACRAMENTO (AP)—The fuel shortage forced California motorists off state highways in record numbers during January, the State Department of Transportation said Friday.

January traffic volume was nine per cent less than expected—the largest monthly decline since World War II.

"THE availability and price of gasoline are no doubt two important factors that contributed to the decline," said A. C. Estep, the department's traffic branch chief.

January travel was estimated at 4.7 billion vehicle-miles compared with 4.9 billion vehicle miles in January of 1973.

Highway traffic volume had increased at an average rate of 5.6 per cent per year during the last five years, he said.

Cal. 'clarifies' odd-even gas distribution system

From Our L.A. Bureau

The State Office of Emergency Services has put out "clarifications" of its odd-even gasoline distribution plan which apparently ignore a number of significant changes called for by the county and other agencies to make the plan work smoothly.

The state's four-point bulletin basically stresses that doctors and nurses will be given no blanket exemption and spells out guidelines for service station dealers to determine which vehicles are to be classified as "commercial" and therefore exempt from the odd-even day system.

However, the guidelines still leave the dealer to decide which vehicles that are not obviously commercial can be classified as such for drawing gasoline any day of the week.

The new bulletin simply says vehicles of doctors and nurses should be considered as those being used for commercial purposes and therefore still subject to a dealer's judgment as to whether they qualify or not.

It further says "in extreme emergency situations they (doctors and nurses) can call upon taxis, ambulances or the local law enforcement agencies."

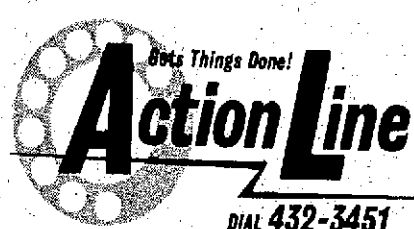

Other parts of the bulletin stress that Federal Energy Office regulations prohibit sales of gasoline by appointment (unless the dealer was practicing this before Jan. 15 of this year) and regulations also ban stations from selling gas exclusively to commercial vehicles.

sponse to an urgent call from the county, spearheaded by Supervisor James Hayes, earlier this week to make a number of important changes in the plan.

Among these was the "C" sticker for commercial use; the necessity for Sunday service station openings and posting of specific pumping hours; the need for stations to ration their monthly allocations to ensure a regular daily supply; the imposition of maximum and minimum sales to overcome difficulties of supply and the half-tank restriction in the plan; and a provision to give stranded motorists on any day two gallons or $1 worth of gas.

Hayes, informed of the new guidelines, said he will study them and make a further statement after the weekend.

Check up

My sister is 85 and ill and has been in rest homes near Albuquerque, N.M. since her son died in November. Her daughter-in-law has told me my sister isn't being cared for properly. She doesn't have enough to eat, she's in a cold room, she needs medical attention and the woman who runs the boarding home takes all of her social security checks. The welfare there was supposed to put her in a nursing home with skilled care but they haven't done a thing about her. Can you do anything for her? J.J.R., Seal Beach.

The social worker from the welfare department in Albuquerque who has been checking on your sister told ACTION LINE conditions for the elderly woman have improved and she does not want to be moved from the boarding home. The social worker, Mrs. Dolores Villanueva, said she would continue to visit your sister and would move her if and when she wants to leave there. The woman who runs the boarding home had not been preparing hot meals but has promised to fix one hot meal a day. Your sister also says she doesn't need medical care. Her monthly $140 Social Security check is paid to the home for her board and care and $10 of it is given to her for personal use. Mrs. Villanueva said she will write to you with further information.

Deductions

I will be retiring in a year. Since I will be leaving the state would my union pension be subject to a state withholding tax along with a state disability deduction? J.P., Long Beach.

You will be subject to state withholding tax because your pension income is derived from California sources, according to a spokesman from the State Franchise Tax Board. However, you will not be subject to a state disability deduction since you will be retired.

Chain letter

In a chain reaction accident on the freeway, who is at fault? For example, if a person who runs into the vehicle in front of his is at fault will the person running into him from behind be at fault also? Also, if a car stalls in a middle lane of the freeway, what should the driver do? H.I., Long Beach.

Generally any car hitting another from behind is considered at fault because the law requires drivers to maintain enough distance from the car in front to avoid it if it suddenly slows or stops, according to a traffic supervisor with the Long Beach Police Department. Applied to a chain-reaction series of crashes, each following driver probably would be held responsible for the front-end damage to his own car and rear-end damage to the car ahead. If your car stalls in a stop-and-go situation where traffic is moving very slowly, the highway patrol advises you get out and cross carefully to the right-hand side of the freeway and call for help. However, if traffic is moving too fast to walk safely then you should stay in your car until help arrives. In any event you should turn on your emergency blinker light signals.

Ditto data

Is there a recycling outlet that will take old ditto paper? We use an awfully lot at school and I hate to see it all wasted. J.O., Long Beach.

Long Beach Disposal, 1327 W. 12th St., and Coastal Paper and Scrap Co., 1404 Hayes Ave., will buy ditto and xerox paper for recycling. Hours at Long Beach Disposal are 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday. At Coastal Paper and Scrap Co., hours are 8 a.m. to noon Monday through Saturday.

TV repair

In July, 1972, I bought a color television set from English T.V., 9110 Telegraph Road, Downey. The television has worked very poorly and has been in the English T.V. repair shop several times. I would like the set replaced since I don't think that it will ever work correctly. My warranty has run out and I refuse to pay the $72 they now want to charge me to fix it. Could ACTION LINE please help me? A.A., Lynwood.

English T.V. will not replace your set since you have had it for over six months and there was nothing drastically wrong with it in the first place, according to store manager Gary Warner. However, Warner said the store owner has offered to sell you a one year service warranty at a discount and not charge you the $72 for repairs.

Elk Hills oil field said nearly drained

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Asphalto oil field in the Navy's oil reserve at Elk Hills, Calif., has been pretty well depleted during prolonged litigation, Navy officials told a House subcommittee Friday.

Assistant Navy Secretary Jack Bowers agreed with Rep. Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., that "the oil is gone."

"Absolutely," Bowers said. "I've admitted that and it is a regrettable circumstance."

And the Navy got "not one barrel ... not one dime" from the oil drained from beneath its land? Pike asked.

"That is correct," Bowers said.

The Elk Hills Petroleum Reserve is one of four Navy pieces of oil-producing land set aside for defense needs. Elk Hills is the oldest of the four, created by executive order in 1912 and covering originally 38,000 acres and now 46,000.

When land is drilled for oil wells adjacent to the Naval reserves, the Navy has in the past drilled wells on the reserves to offset the draining into the adjacent commercial wells.

Sales of the oil from the Navy wells bring money to the federal treasury. But the Navy itself does not derive income, nor does it keep the oil beyond its own storage capacity on each reserve.

Pike and J. P. Trunz Jr., director of the Office of Naval Petroleum and Oil Shale Reserves, told Pike's special subcommittee looking into Naval energy matters that a suit the federal government brought against Standard Oil of California to try to halt drainage of Asphalto, dragged on for more than six years.

"They are almost depleted," Trunz said. Originally estimated at 13 million barrels of oil in the Navy portion of the field, the oil totals approximately 3 million barrels now, Trunz said.

Meat price fall of up to 20 pct. seen next week

Associated Press

California consumers will find lower meat prices at grocery stores beginning next week, in some cases dropping as much as 20 cents a pound on some cuts, a packing industry spokesman said Friday in Los Angeles.

Cal Santare of the Western States Meat Packers Association said some chains in the state will drop their T-bone and porterhouse steak cuts by 10 cents a pound, and one chain plans to slash its rump roast price by 21 cents a pound.

cent. So people are just not buying it."

A spokesman for Ralphs Grocery Co. agreed, blaming the decline in enthusiasm over beef purchasing on the meat boycott last spring. Arnold Kind, vice president of Ralphs' meat division, added, "During the truckers and butchers strikes, prices jumped dramatically, but sales dropped. The consumer seems to be able to adjust, to turn it on and off when they want to."

A SPOT check of supermarket chains showed top sirloin, T-bone and chuck steaks and seven-bone roasts will drop 10 cents at Alpha Beta markets next week, and rump roast will plummet 21 cents a pound.

While most chain operators agree prices will continue to drop, Lucky Stores executive Jerry Sgobassi said his chain has been cutting prices each of the last four weeks but does not expect the trend to continue.

RETAIL prices for meat soared to new highs in the state during January and February because of the truckers and butchers strikes but have stabilized at a lower level recently.

Next week's drop in prices comes at a time when retail sales of meat are off in some locations. "Sales of beef are off," Santare said in an interview. "Some of our retail operators tell me they are off as much as 15 per

Pacific Gas asks big rate increase

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Pacific Gas & Electric Co. Friday filed for a $100 million annual increase in gas and electric rates to be effective next month.

The utility asked the California Public Utilities Commission for $9.6 million more in electric rates, effective April 7, to offset the higher prices paid for fuel oil in the last three months and for $11 million more in natural gas rates, effective April 1 to offset higher prices for gas supplied by El Paso Natural Gas Co.

If approved, the increases would raise the typical household's monthly bill 93 cents for electricity and 13 cents for gas. The PUC staff will review the applications, but no hearings are required for such offset increases.

PG&E has applications pending for a $156 million increase in natural gas rates, effective July 1, to offset higher prices for gas from El Paso, Canadian and California sources. This would add $1.82 to the typical customer's monthly gas bill.

The PUC also is conducting hearings into a $233 million-gas and electric rate general increase which would raise average monthly bills $3.36 to cover higher costs of labor and other operations.

The company says the price it has paid for fuel oil in the last three months has increased more than 70 per cent and that its fuel oil requirements have gone up from about 3 million barrels in 1972 to an estimated 30 million barrels this year because of a cut in natural gas supplies.

100 file in rush to beat deadline

Our L.A. Bureau

Pandemonium reigned in the registrar-recorder's office Friday as more than 100 candidates rushed to file papers for various federal, state and local offices in the June 4 Primary Election before the 5 p.m. deadline.

Officials said the last-minute filings bring to about 530 the total number of candidates whose papers were filed in Los Angeles County. This includes many non-partisan offices such as judges and water district directors.

They said many of the final day candidates were political unknowns and added that a small percentage took advantage of new laws allowing persons pleading poverty to pay no filing fee.

FILINGS for the governor's race were highlighted by the late entries of Democrats Edmund G. Brown Jr. and Claremont lawyer Herb Hafif.

They joined other big-name candidates who had already completed filing by Friday, such as Democrats — Bob Moretti, state Assembly speaker, and Rep. Jerome R. Waldie and Supervisor Baxter Ward; and Republicans — Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke and State Controller Houston I. Flournoy.

In the state treasurer's race former Assembly Speaker Jess Unruh completed filing Friday for the Democratic nomination. His main Democratic rivals were attorney Gray Davis and developer Eugene Beaumont. Republican entries who had filed previously included R. Cyril Kay, an investment adviser, and H. Stanley Jones, Inglewood City Treasurer.

Other earlier filings were W. Wayne Fortner, American Independent, and James Stanbery, state finance analyst running under the banner of the Peace and Freedom Party.

Another final-day candidate was State Sen. H. L. Richardson, R-Los Angeles, who took up the challenge to run for U.S.

Senator against incumbent Democrat Alan Cranston.

On the county scene Assessor Philip Watson, who up to Friday had been unopposed, picked up two opponents — Oliver Wendell Wilson, a professor of black studies at Cal State Dominguez Hills, and Vernon E. Brown, a former Assessment Appeals Board member who in past years had several well-publicized clashes with Watson.

A number of last-minute candidates also sought success in the races for First and Third District Supervisor.

In the First District, incumbent Pete Schabrum, who had remained unopposed for most of the filing season, picked up challenges from Charles Ruggles, a civil engineer, and Walter L. Binney, occupation unavailable at closing time.

The Third District seat being vacated by veteran Ernest Debs saw a field of nine candidates seeking nomination by the close of filing. Entering the race Friday were former TV newscaster Larry Burrell, Los Angeles City Councilman John Ferraro, and a former aide to ex-Mayor Sam Yorty, Robert L. Goe.

Other leading challengers in that race are Los Angeles City Councilmen Edmund Edelman and Ernani Bernardi.

In the heavily-contested 34th District Congressional race one of the notables who took out papers on the last day was Long Beach City Councilman Russ Rubley, Democrat.

Because of the heavy rush of last-minute filings, County officials were not able to complete tabulations of the total number of candidates in each race until late Friday night. The complete list of candidates filing for Congressional, State Senate and Assembly seats in the Long Beach area will appear in Sunday's edition.

Calif. financial disclosure law ruled unconstitutional

NEVADA CITY (UPI)—California's new Watergate-spawned conflict of interest and financial disclosure law for public officials was struck down as unconstitutional Friday by a Superior Court judge.

Visiting Judge Harold V. Thompson of Fresno ruled two provisions of the law requiring strict financial disclosures would make officeholders "fair game for a great many abuses wholly unrelated to any public purpose."

"THIS COURT does not find in the present law any protection for the officeholder nor potential officeholder from the malicious use of the information provided by such officeholders concerning their financial affairs," the judge said in a nine-page opinion.

Nevada County Dist. Atty. Ronald MacMillan said he would appeal the decision "as soon as possible" to the 3rd District Court of Appeal in Sacramento.

Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, author of the measure, asked the state Supreme Court to take immediate action to hear the case on its own motion.

IN SACRAMENTO, Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. said he would continue to enforce the law as the state's top election official despite the ruling.

Brown said the ruling "has no effect outside" Nevada County and "I will continue enforcing the law unless the Supreme Court rules the law unconstitutional."

The law, which went into effect Jan. 1, has prompted more than 60 officials across the state to resign. Most contended the measure invaded their privacy.

AMONG other things, the statute required an estimated 7,500 elected and appointed officials to file annual reports on their assets, the first of which was due next month. Under the ruling, unless overturned, they will not have to file.

The most controversial provision required disclosure of an official's business interest or investment worth more than $1,000 and the source of any income, gift or loan in excess of $250.

Thompson declared that provision and one requiring a financial statement when an official leaves office to be unconstitutional. He said those provisions could not be severed from the rest of the act, and struck the entire law.

THE SUIT was brought by the Nevada County Board of Supervisors. Sixteen members of various local boards and commissions in Nevada County resigned rather than comply.

In the wake of the resignations, Moscone introduced "clarifying" legislation. The bill amended the law to say that an officeholder such as a doctor or an attorney need not divulge the names of patients or clients who paid more than $250 for services.

But Thompson said he would not consider that bill because it will not take effect as law until next year.

The clarifying legislation was introduced as an "urgency" measure that would take effect immediately upon signature by Gov. Reagan. But Assembly Republicans refused to give it the 54 votes necessary for passage as an urgency statute.

As a result, the bill was passed and signed as a nonurgency statute and would not take effect until next year.

Moscone and Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, Friday accused Assembly Republicans of deliberately torpedoing the "urgency" measure so Thompson could not take it into consideration in his decision.

"They got their way," Moretti said. "They will not have to disclose. It's a real shame."

"The public demand for clean and open government is so overwhelming that it is essential that the California Supreme Court on its own motion immediately agree to hear the case," Moscone said.

Brown fears youth may shun politics

SAN JOSE (AP)—The Watergate scandals could drive young people away from political service and leave the United States with a "second-rate government," Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. said Friday.

"We now face the very real danger that young people will turn their backs on government service because of the tragedies we have all witnessed in the past year," the Democratic candidate for governor said in remarks prepared for an appearance before students at San Jose State University.

If that happens, Brown said, "our nation will be turned over to years of potential inadequacy and failure."

"We must overcome the Watergate and Agnew scandals and rekindle a spirit of hope in our national leadership," he added. "The people of our nation want a new era of honesty and openness and an end to the government of deceit. Our young people are the key to that future."

Impeachment stall denied by Waldie

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Jerome R. Waldie labeled as ludicrous Friday Gov. Reagan's assertion that the House Judiciary Committee wants to prolong the impeachment inquiry.

"That inquiry would quickly conclude if the President would only cooperate," said Waldie. "Instead, the President denies the committee evidence in his possession."

Waldie, a member of the Judiciary panel, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of California.

Waldie said Reagan's remark was a "partisan attempt to defend the President's lack of cooperation with the committee and the special prosecutor."

If Reagan wants to speed up the House inquiry, said Waldie, "let him urge the President to surrender all the tapes and documents the committee has sought and to agree to testify under oath before the committee."

Flournoy urges Cal. long-range planning

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—California must develop long range planning programs so state government is not constantly "reacting to one crisis after another," State Controller Houston I. Flournoy said Friday.

"We must anticipate problems and provide realistic solutions," Flournoy told a meeting of the Pacific Coast Electrical Association. "We can and we must regain control of our destiny or one day we will look around and see a California that isn't different then any other state."

Flournoy, a Republican candidate for governor, said that only through such a comprehensive planning program "can we develop rational approaches for transportation, for health care, for educational programs, for community development, for environmental protection and for a healthy, growing free enterprise economy."

Doctor guilty of defrauding Medi-Cal plan

Dr. Wesley G. Slocum, 47-year-old Santa Ana physician, was found guilty Friday of 23 counts of defrauding Medi-Cal.

A Santa Ana superior court jury reported to Judge Harmon Scoville to complete its 25th week of the case, which stretched into the longest criminal trial in Orange County history.

Slocum had been indicted by the Orange County Grand Jury on one count of grand theft and 24 counts of filing false claims against the state's medical care plan.

Two of the misdemeanor charges of false filings were dropped, but the jury convicted Slocum on the other 22 as well as the grand theft charge, a felony.

Scoville set March 28 for the sentencing.

Shockley loses forum

NEW HAVEN (AP)—A third Yale University group has withdrawn an invitation to physicist William B. Shockley to debate his genetic theories, this time blaming a lack of funds.

Shockley, who teaches engineering at Stanford University, had been invited to debate Roy Innis, executive director of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE). The event was scheduled tentatively for next Thursday.

Shockley, a Nobel Laureate in physics, proposes voluntary sterilization of persons with low IQs, and holds that genetic differences causes blacks to perform poorer in testing than whites.

Two get 35 years on narcotics counts

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Saying "it is my duty as a judge to protect society," a federal court judge Friday sentenced two men involved in an international drug-making operation to a total of 35 years in prison.

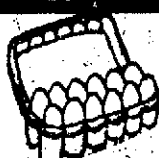

U.S. District Court Judge Samuel Conti sentenced Robert Timothy Scully, 29, a Mendocino electronics expert, to 20 years and fined him $10,000 on charges of conspiracy, manufacturing and sale of LSD.

Nicholas Sand, 31, a New York chemist, was sentenced to 15 years and fined $10,000 for evading income taxes, conspiracy, manufacture and sale of LSD.

"I think deterrence should be given preference in determining sentences or else you are going to see anarchy in this country," Conti told the men. "...Call it what you will, the psychedelic movement, The Brotherhood of Eternal Love, which sold some of this LSD or the Hells Angels, it all ends in the degradation of mankind and society."

Employment in county steady despite crunch

Combined News Services

Fears that the energy crisis might cause large jumps in unemployment failed to materialize last month.

The state Employment Development Department (EDD) reported Friday, that the unemployment rate in Los Angeles county, 6.8 per cent of the state work force, remained unchanged in February.

EDD said it listed a total of 228,100 persons as unemployed in the county last month. That was an increase of nearly 8,000 over the January level. The percentage rate remained unchanged because of seasonal adjustments.

Total employment in the county in February stood at 2.9 million — a decline of 2,000 from January.

In other parts of Southern California, Orange County had a 5.8 per cent unemployment rate, down from 6.0 per cent in January.

Riverside and San Bernardino Counties had a rate of 7.5 in February, the same as in January.

Ventura County had a rate of 5.0 per cent in February, down from 5.7 per cent in January. A year ago in February the rate was 5.9 per cent.

Some 12,000 persons were forced out of work by the energy crisis last month as the employment rate inched up slightly, state officials said.

Peter C. Rank, acting director of the EDD, said the unadjusted unemployment rate climbed from 7.9 per cent to 8.4 per cent during February. The February 1973 unadjusted rate was 8.2 per cent.

THE ESTIMATED number of unemployed persons rose from 701,800 in January 1974 to 744,000 in February. The number of employed persons also increased by 8,100, to 8.14 per cent.

Rank said the seasonally adjusted rate, which takes into account seasonal differences in employment, dropped from 7.3 per cent to 7.2 per cent.

He said the increase in the number of unemployed persons "was smaller than usual for this time of year."

"Favorable weather conditions, permitting early starts in outdoor activities such as agriculture, construction, and lumber helped to offset the impact of slower growth in other industries and the energy related layoffs," he said.

The 12,000 jobs lost because of the energy crisis equalled the number lost in January and totaled 5.6 per cent of the layoffs during the month.

Suzanne Schroeder, a spokesman for Rank, said the 12,000 figure represents the number of persons who applied for unemployment benefits during February and said they lost their jobs because of the energy crisis.

THE NATION'S unemployment rate held steady at 5.2 per cent of the labor force in February after three months of increases, the Labor Department reported.

In a special analysis, the department found that a maximum of 500,000 workers may have lost their jobs directly or indirectly because of the energy shortage, with the automobile industry by far the biggest single factor, but the growth rate in other job areas has offset this loss, leaving total employment essentially unchanged since the energy problem began to "bite" last November.

The loss of jobs due to energy shortage amounts at most to only one-half of 1 per cent of the vast and diversified U.S. Labor force.

Ford to lay off 16,000 workers

DETROIT (UPI)—The Ford Motor Co. Friday said 16,000 workers at four assembly plants and 10 parts and manufacturing plants face one and two-week layoffs during March because of the continued cutback in big-car production.

The layoffs were in line with previous plans by Ford to hold production this month to 185,000 cars, a 22 per cent drop from a year ago because of slumping big-car sales. By the end of March, Ford will have 15,375 workers on indefinite lay-offs.

The Ford layoffs were less drastic than those announced Thursday by General Motors, which plans to shut 15 of its 22 U.S. car plants next week and eliminate second-shift operations at three plants by the end of the month. Some 56,000 GM workers will be idled next week with more than 60,000 on indefinite lay-off.

OLDSMOBILE division of GM, which announced it was trimming nearly 1,300 workers earlier this week, Friday said it was cutting another 1,457 workers beginning Monday. Oldsmobile, with a drop in sales of more than 48 per cent in February from a year ago, has cut almost 5,000 workers from the payroll since the beginning of the year.

American Motors Corp., which has been enjoying a sales boom because of its stress on small cars, also announced it was idling about 2,900 workers at its Milwaukee, Wis., body plant next week to cut back on production of its intermediate-size Matador and Ambassador models. The move also will free badly needed parts for AMC's hot-selling, small cars, a company spokesman said.

IN LATE February, the "Big Four" automakers had targeted production in March at 656,000 cars.

but the latest GM layoffs may cause that figure to drop by more than 60,000. Instead of reaching first-quarter output of 1,832,000 cars, the industry may turn out only 1,762,000 cars—a drop of 35 per cent from a year ago.

Libel law not shot at press, Nixon aide says

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said Friday that the object of a proposed federal libel law benefiting public figures "is not to shaft the press of the United States."

Bryce Harlow, counselor to President Nixon, told newsmen at a briefing on Nixon's campaign reform proposals that the intent of the libel provision is to define terms used in a 10-year-old landmark Supreme Court libel ruling.

In answer to a barrage of questions about First Amendment rights and the effect such a law might have on news reporting, Harlow said:

"I understand your sensibilities. There was no intention on the part of the President to injure the press."

Nixon said in his campaign reform message that he had "asked the Department of Justice to explore the possibility of legislation to reaffirm certain private rights of public figures so that people interested in running for public office can have greater assurance of recourse against slanderous attacks on them or their families."

"Landmark Supreme Court decisions have severely restricted a public figure's ability to gain redress against such grievances, but I would hope that specifically defined limits can be legislated by the Congress to prevent unscrupulous attack on public figures."

Harlow released a Justice Department memo which cited the 1964 case, New York Times v. Sullivan. In the case, the court held that to win a libel suit, a public official had to prove a statement was uttered with "knowledge that it was false or with reckless disregard of whether it was false or not."

HE SAID, HOWEVER, that the method of proving "reckless disregard" had not been spelled out. The proposed legislation would seek to do this.

Harlow said the proposal had been recommended to the President, not thought up by Nixon himself.

Asked if Nixon considered he had been defamed by reporting on the Watergate affair, Harlow said: "I can't say if the President thought he was defamed or not. He didn't tell me."

In addition to the libel proposal, Nixon asked Congress for strict new limits on political contributions without resorting to tax-paid campaign financing.

In the campaign reform message, Nixon cited election-year abuses of 1972 — but never mentioned Watergate by name — in proposing to outlaw campaign "dirty tricks," shorten the duration of campaigns and require far greater disclosure of the source of political contributions.

Nixon also proposed further study of a single, six-year term for President, rather than the present limit of two four-year terms, and four rather than two-year terms for House members.

Nixon's denunciation of a Senate-approved provision for Treasury financing of presidential and congressional campaigns as "taxation without representation" drew protests from Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., chairman of the House GOP membership, and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who called it "fatuous."

The Center for Public Financing of Elections, a private citizens' lobby, called Nixon's proposals "too little, too late," especially his opposition to public campaign financing.

"NO RESPONSIBLE official would suggest that the costs of finding a cure for cancer be left strictly to voluntary contributions," it said.

Another citizen's lobby, Common Cause, said the proposals "are an attempt to kill meaningful campaign finance reform." It added: "The story of his (Nixon's) 1972 presidential campaign finances constitutes the greatest case ever made for controlling campaign finance abuses through public financing of elections."

The Senate last year voted strict ceilings on campaign spending, including a present $24 million limit on presidential candidates in general elections, and will begin debate on a federal financing measure opposed by Nixon.

"I doubt very much that most citizens would favor diverting hundreds of millions of tax dollars away from pressing national needs in order to underwrite politicians' campaigns," Nixon said, especially for those they oppose.

Nixon's message, Kennedy said, was "no more than a thinly veiled attempt ... to obstruct or even kill the most effective response Congress has yet made to Watergate."

Macrame — its use for plants

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

The dictionary explains macrame (mak'-ra-me) as "fringed lace made by tying threads into knots to form geometrical designs made chiefly in Genoa, Italy, used especially for decorating linens and furniture. Macrame cord is a fine closely twisted cord in making macrame lace, netting etc."

Today, jute, flax, cotton, polyester prestained, and even string are some of the material used to make the macrame.

Among the many different kinds of ornaments that are made of macrame, the most outstanding was a macrame necklace with a wooden cross that a minister, Wayne Johnson of the Palm Desert Community Presbyterian Church wore the day we met him. We had tried to get permission to take a picture of a landscape planting of bush lantanas below a window. The owner wasn't home. We asked Rev. Johnson if he would keep an eye on us while I took the picture. He invited us to see his two macrame hanging pottery containers with succulents growing in them. It was an artistic and attractive use of the macrame.

NEXT TIME some one comments that manure isn't good to use on account of the salt content in it, here's a comment about manure that appeared in California Farmer. Dr. Burl Meek of the Imperial Valley Conservation Research Center, says effects on the soil from 40 tons per acre per year were less cracking and crusting, followed by better germination of sorghum.

Third quarter of the moon March 16. . . The Bible first printed in type this week in 1462. . . Some robins and crows should be back north now. . . Animal hibernation about over. . . Whatever is begun in anger usually ends in shame.

Old Farmer's Riddle: Why is a clock like a condemned man? (Answer below.)

Ask the Old Farmer: When I recently purchased a small oak desk, I was told it was a Larkin desk — one that was given years ago as a premium by the Larkin Soap Co. How could they give a desk of this kind as a premium for selling soap? (G.S., Atlanta.)

The profit on the soap must have been substantial. They gave desks, bookcases, dishes and trunks. (We own a desk and bookcase combined. Don't know how many hundred-weights of soap it took to earn it.)

Time Hint: Pierce the end of an egg with a pin, and it will not break when placed in boiling water. . . Shelling will be difficult to apply and remain sticky unless it has been mixed with denatured alcohol before use. . . Riddle answer: Its hands are numbered.

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECASTS

New England: Storm first part of week with heavy rain and 3-5" snow in mountains; end of week very cold with light snow.

Middle Atlantic Coast: Rain to start, then clearing and mild; light snow and cold latter part, then warming.

Florida: First part of week rainy; end of week cloudy and cool then rain in north and sunnier and warm in south and central.

Deep South: Clear to start, then warm; cloudy and cooler latter part, then rain.

Rocky Mountain Region: First part of week clear and mild in central and east and intermittent snow in north; end of week clear and warm with showers in central.

Southwest Desert: Mostly clear to start, then becoming much warmer with highs near 80; end of week partly cloudy and cooler.

Pacific Northwest: Cloudy and showers at first, then clear and warming; clear and warm latter part, then rain.

California: First part of week generally clear and warm; end of week mostly cloudy with rain in north.

Wallace says he rejected VP spot

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace says the Democratic vice presidential nomination was offered to him in 1972, but he rejected it because he could not run on the party platform.

"(Sen. George) McGovern didn't come and talk to me personally," Wallace said, "but some important people came and offered me the vice presidency in exchange for my delegates."

"If I told you who they were you would know they were important. But I turned them down because I couldn't run on their platform."

Wallace carried 377 delegates to the 1972 convention and his aides have said Sen. Hubert Humphrey offered him the second spot in a "Stop-McGovern" movement.

If McGovern had lost a challenge to the California delegation, Wallace would have held the votes the senator needed to assure himself a first ballot nomination.

McGovern won the challenge and the nomination. Wallace maintains he is still undecided about 1976, but he would not rule out a fourth campaign for the presidency or the possibility he might accept the vice presidency.

Despite Wallace's statement, his national campaign staff is working to set up grassroots organizations in all 50 states. His staff estimates Wallace will take about 900 delegates to the 1976 Democratic convention, giving him a strong say over the nominee and the party platform.

Wallace said he is convinced "the next Democratic platform is going to be written by the people I represent."

There are Wallace representatives on all the major committees of the national Democratic Party, and Wallace boasts that he has not had to make any deals to win his new acceptance within the party structure.

"I haven't made any concessions at all. I don't have to make any," he said. "They all want to be where I am because they realize I represent what the majority of the people in this country believe."

Era of the naked runner Streakers bared to Europe

By United Press International

The era of the naked runner, newest spring ritual of the American student set, spread to Europe Friday and brought comments ranging from "amazing" to "disgusting."

While streaking apparently had not hit its peak in the United States, residents from England to Germany got their first view of it. Thirteen streakers wearing only University of Illinois signs on their bare backs dashed through a park in the shadow of the Eiffel Tower in Paris.

A NUDE blonde ran through the sleepy British seaside town of Bournemouth. Other streakers showed up in Wiesbaden and Heidelberg, Germany.

Thousands of American college students were taking part in the latest fad and a few high schools were being swept up in the craze. Some punishment was being handed out, but generally it was rare.

Four Memphis State University students were fined $50 each and sentenced to 30 days in jail for indecent exposure stemming from a "streak-in" at the school. Five Tulsa, Okla., high school students were suspended for streaking.

A nude man was struck and killed as he darted across the busy, five-lane Dallas-Fort Worth Turnpike, but police said a bottle of codeine-spiked cough syrup may have had more to do with it than the streaking fad.

THE PARIS streakers raced in close formation her only garment, a fur coat, to a youth and then dashed down a busy street, down an alley next to a movie theater and into a waiting car.

"Disgusting," said an elderly woman. "Amazing," said a 19-year-old salesman, Phil Anderson. Stuart Potter, 40, observed, "She was most attractive."

Two Heidelberg streakers, wearing only neckties and tennis shoes, dashed into the officers club Rathskeller, around the tables and then back outside.

A U.S. ARMY public relations officer commented, "Ties are not required there."

Virtually the entire student body and faculty at Dalton, Ga., Junior College turned out to watch a series of naked runners to their thing on campus. But in South Carolina, the House of Representatives considered a bill which would require all state colleges to expel anyone guilty of streaking.

In Auburn, N.Y., 10 young women, clad only in shorts, dashed down a crowded street and proclaimed themselves "half streakers."

FOUR Clemson students, two male and two female, were arrested in downtown Clemson, S.C., Friday and charged with indecent exposure. A sheriff's office spokesman said, "As far as we're concerned, they weren't streaking—they were just running around naked."

Clemson claimed 830 streakers on campus during the night. And the universities of Georgia and Maryland each reported that up to 600 streakers put in an appearance.

TWO STREAKERS dash into the mall at Catherine McAuley, Catholic all-girl high school in Portland, Me., during lunch time Friday. The girl covering her eyes as she holds the door just happened to be there when the streakers arrived. —UPI calmly, "They caused some consternation." In Bournemouth, where one resident said "nothing much" ever happens, a long-haired blonde who had tipped off photographers in advance, handed

In 39-degree weather up the Champ De Mars, past startled tourists at the foot of the famed Eiffel Tower before jumping into waiting cars and driving off.

Briefly ... Pornography at newsstands; comeback for 'mainstream'?

INDEPENDENT PRESS TELEGRAM

realize the "hard core pornographic" nature of these sheets.

ARE THE "mainstream" denomination churches, which have suffered some attrition in the past decade, making a comeback? Rev. Dr. Russell Robinson of Los Altos United Methodist thinks so.

"People are discovering more relevance, as well as their own need for what these churches offer," he says. "There is a 'yeasting' of new life within us."

IN THE FIRST action of its kind, the administrative board of the U.S. Catholic Bishops, acting "in solidarity with churches in Brazil and Chile," has charged repression of human rights in those countries and urged the U.S. government to condition its economic aid on democratic changes in those policies by the ruling military juntas.

Rev. Frederick McGuire, head of the U.S. Catholic Conference Latin American Division, recently made a fact finding trip to Chile and reported widespread arrests, torture, intimidation and other persecution.

In Brazil, in a pastoral letter entitled "I Have Heard the Cries of My People," 18 Brazilian bishops and religious superiors documented persecutions. The document was banned from publication by the government, Russian style, but was circulated privately.

Archbishop Helder Camera of Brazil, an outspoken foe of police state violations of individual rights, says: "If the religions of the world do not bring moral pressure to bear upon those responsible for such crimes, humanity will no longer trust them to speak in the name of God."

To the extent he is right about this, it is a legitimate challenge to those Christians who say "the church has no business meddling in politics."

THOUGH THE evangelical magazine Christianity

Today does not itself recommend the movie to the general public, its editor-publisher, Harold Lindsell, comments: "I have been bemused by the fact that some religious liberals have condemned 'The Exorcist' as pornographic even though they have found worse films acceptable. I suspect that their condemnation derives largely from an anti-supernatural bias and an unwillingness to believe in a personal devil and demons."

STRAINS BETWEEN the organized Jewish community and the National Council of Churches over attitudes on the Middle East may be alleviated by a major grant from the Lilly Foundation to fund a new office for Jewish-Christian relations at the Council offices.

Totalling $200,000 for two years, the grant will be split between the new office and the Council's existing Middle East desk. Purpose of the new office is described by Claire Randall, executive secretary of the Council as "to respond to the changing situation and need for new relationships between Christians and Jews... to develop communication and trust... and encourage common action."

The Middle East desk will provide resources for advancing understanding in this country between Arab Christians and Jews, and will publish all relevant documents.

JUST WONDERING—Will some pastor put on the message board announcing the Sunday sermon topic: "Adam and Eve were the first streakers," as a lead-in to a scriptural message?

THE UNFAIR squeeze on religious publications by the government's increased postage rates comes in for scathing editorial comment in the magazine Christianity Today.

To mail the same amount of material in 1974 as in 1973, it says, costs an additional $100,000. "The new rates," it adds, "will certainly drive many ailing publications out of business, and many more will be pushed to the wall if the further projected increases go into effect."

The magazine recognizes the argument that previous mail rates may have been unrealistic and constituted a government subsidy to publications which live precariously by gifts.

"But if this argument is to apply," says the editorial, "it should apply across the board. There should be no farm subsidies; the railroads and airplane companies should not be rescued from bankruptcy by government support; and the thousands of other direct and indirect subsidies should be discontinued. This is a very unlikely possibility."

"The free flow of ideas is essential to the democratic way of life," the magazine continues. "When this flow becomes difficult or impossible, the loss is irreparable. Fifty or a hundred thousand or several million dollars' difference in annual postage costs can force many newspapers, magazines, and eleemosynary organizations out of business. This is too high a price to pay for postal inefficiency, particularly when the government spends billions of dollars in other subsidies."

In new Texas constitution

Gay marriage ban proposed

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Legislators rewriting the 98-year-old Texas Constitution are considering a proposal its sponsor said would prohibit homosexual marriages and "put women back on the pedestal where they should be."

A female critic said the plan could empower the legislature to ban all divorces and require shotgun weddings of unmarried women who get pregnant.

The proposal by state Rep. Frank Lombardino, a San Antonio Democrat, would authorize the legislature to pass laws to preserve "the traditional family structure."

The General Provisions

Committee approved the plan by a 16-1 vote. It must be approved by the full Constitutional Convention which is rewriting Texas' ancient state charter.

State Rep. Joe Hubenak said he favors the proposal as a means of blocking homosexual marriages. He said the old constitution contained no provision on the family.

"Of course, in 1876 I guess we didn't have as many homosexuals floating around as we do now," Hubenak said. "And we didn't have divorces or abortions either."

"This is just a policy statement giving a little protection to home life. How would you like to see your son or daughter streaking up and down the University of Texas campus buck-naked? I think this is a spinoff from our permissive society."

Lombardino said his proposal would help women, not hinder them. "Women deserve all the rights men have, and then some," said Lombardino, a former San Antonio policeman. "My proposal doesn't touch the Equal Rights Amendment. It gives women all the rights they have now, and then some more if the legislature wants to give it to them. I'm just trying to protect them."

Rep. Chris Miller, a Fort Worth Democrat, is leading a convention fight to reverse the committee's approval of the provision.

"One question I have in mind is whether they could do away with all divorce laws," she said. "Or could the legislature force pregnant women to get married to preserve the traditional family unit?"

"I think the pedestal thing is a putdown to both men and women," she said.

Ms. Miller said she isn't concerned about homosexual marriages "because there are no children involved."

Pocketless gain lasts until he has his pockets

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI)—A little free enterprise in the streaking craze here Friday.

An unidentified Saguaro High School student managed to get fellow students to pay him $70 for him to run nude from the school cafeteria to the parking lot at which time he would jump into his car.

The youth collected the cash, doffed his clothes and dashed. Alas, he forgot his car keys were in his pants, which he wasn't wearing. So off he ran, sans clothes, across the football field to a friend's house where he borrowed some clothing and returned.

School officials then apprehended him and made him return the money.

Meet the new area church council leader, a most interesting man

By LES RODNEY

The new president of the Long Beach Area Council of Churches is just like any other black staff member of the County Human Relations Commission who spent 22 years in the military, was a social worker, a deputy probation officer, belongs to the Reactivated Stone-wall Jackson Brigade Naval Auxiliary (a fun group of local history buffs) and became a leading layman in an overwhelmingly white church.

The thread that runs through Aaron Herrington's activities, besides excellence, is the truly Christian ability to put himself in the other guy's place, a rather rare quality.

When, for instance, he was a social worker, he sometimes encountered a white who couldn't accept a black as adviser and helper.

"I could have just told him to answer my questions, he had no choice," the slightly built, soft-spoken Herrington said during an interview that this week. "That was my privilege. Instead I'd say try me, and after a while if you're not satisfied, I'll help you get someone else."

It worked.

"In that situation," he added, "you might be dealing with a poor southern white. He grew up a certain way, now here comes a black in a superior position. There's a psychological thing, you have to recognize this."

Another glimpse of the man's outgoing empathy was afforded by the way he spoke about his years as a probation officer in Long Beach (where he was the only black officer.)

"I had to realize I was making recommendations about another person's life, and that 99 per cent of the time my recommendations were followed. That was frightening!"

Not that Herrington is some kind of born saint. He served with the all-black 99th Pursuit Squadron, and encountered what most Negro GIs did in the south.

"When I came here out of the service," he recalled, "a young man with that southern experience just behind me, I had some bitterness in me. I could have been a Rap Brown. Dr. Hangen introduced me to First Congregational Church, he had an influence on me. He was an unusual pastor, some people attacked him for being plain spoken about conditions."

How did Herrington, son of a strong Baptist churchgoing father in Chester, Pa., wind up at First Congregational?

"Their programs. My wife Maycie wrote to me while I was down south that she and my daughter had taken part, that the people at the church were mostly just people who didn't make a big thing one way or the other about their being black." (The Herringtons' older daughter is now married and the mother of one, the younger girl is a senior at Wilson High.)

THE REV. Dr. Emer-

AARON HERRINGTON
'People Mostly Aren't Vicious'

son Hangen referred to, now retired, was pastor of the stately old church at Third and Cedar for 19 years, and was a founding force and early leader of the local Church Council which Herrington now heads.

Herrington, of course, runs into all kinds of attitudes, in and out of the church.

"If something disturbs me," he says, "I will TELL that person, not just talk about him to others. If someone goes on thinking he's right, without being spoken to, he just won't ever know."

Herrington paused for a moment, then added:

"People are not mostly vicious, they are just not aware."

He feels it especially important to confront someone who is in an influential position, one whose views might affect others.

"I just want to let him know. I may say to him 'why do you feel this way, give me your point of view, maybe you can persuade me that it's right to be prejudiced.'"

Basically, the theory Herrington operates on is the teachings of Jesus about redemption being possible for everyone.

"Someone might argue with me, what about those rednecks in the south, what are we going to do about them, they're hopeless, blow them up or what? I believe wherever there is human life, there's hope of change for the better. We all travel a course differently. We are products of our experience. If we get steeped in some ways, it may take time to change. One stroke of an executive order isn't going to change that man. But oh sure, that executive order is still needed."

THERE ARE also some bitter blacks who generalize about all whites, he shrugs. "I understand why they feel that way," he says, "but that's racist too."

Herrington smilingly disclaims credit for his attitudes. "It's the right and human way, that's all. I'm far from a perfect Christian, believe me. I try to follow His teachings. Which isn't to say I sometimes don't get good and mad."

When he accepted the presidency of the local NAACP chapter here some years ago, he relates, someone started a scolding speech to him about what a communistic organization he headed.

"I was still in the National Guard then. I cut this person short and said 'I have a top secret clearance. What do you have?'"

Whatever he runs into, he says, "life is too short for me to go around mad. I have too much living to do, there are too many important things to do."

He often finds the hours of the day short too. Herrington, 54, has been a Sunday School teacher, vice chairman of the church board of trustees, and chaired the pulpit committee which brought the present pastor, Rev. David Reed, to the church. He has handled many responsibilities for the Council of Churches, most recently as chairman of Community Action. Two years ago he was Long Beach area Spotlight Award winner as layman of the year.

THE CHRISTIAN church in general, he notes with some sorrow, "had a long way to go in achieving brotherhood. The church is a place where people can hide behind so many things, using God's name falsely."

"Prejudice," he continued, "is often a matter of fear that has to be overcome by personal contact. Where I live, when we first moved there, people had all kind of ideas about Negroes." He chuckled. "Now I sometimes wish they didn't know me so well, so I could get more rest."

One church member who said she had never been close to a Negro said to him one day: "You must be different from most Negroes."

"No, lady," Herrington replied, "I'm not different, I'm just another person, whose skin is black. You must get to know people."

With all, he comments, "I have to say I am encouraged by the progress I've seen in the churches."

Nor is everything always the way it looks. Plymouth West, the apartment residence for older folk built by First Congregational, is not yet integrated.

"We'd love to have some black families move in," he sighed, "and we're trying. But older blacks tend to be more comfortable among some other blacks. They would lean more to the New Hope Home, which is mixed. You know, not everyone is a pioneer. And the older we get, the less we tend to be pioneers."

BEING PRESIDENT of the Council, a cooperative agency for 66 Protestant churches, will entail more public appearances; he expects, "speaking around to different groups."

As for his own role and emphasis, if he had his druthers, "one of the things I'd like the Council to do would be to reach out more to encourage closer relations with our Catholic and Jewish brothers and sisters, as well as Buddhists and other religions."

Far from diluting the Council's Christianity, he believes: this "will enhance our own beliefs. Ecumenism is the Christian way to go. I'd like us all to get clarity on this, to discuss it, through the Scriptures."

He sees a major role for the Council, and for Long Beach churches individually, in the downtown area in the years ahead. "I don't think this downtown is going to decay,"

U.S. Baptist leaders in Israel tour

A group of 30 leaders of the American Baptist Churches, U.S.A. are in Israel for a 10-day tour in order to examine Jewish-Christian-Muslim relations there in light of the tensions resulting from the October War.

The tour was arranged in cooperation with the American Jewish Committee, through its Christian Visitors to Israel program.

The Baptist clergy and lay leaders are headed by Rev. R. Dean Goodwin, public liaison executive of the A.B.C.

Describing the purposes of the tour, Goodwin explained: "We want to understand the current situation in the Middle East, with particular reference to Israel. We are strongly committed to the survival of Israel, while at the same time we are concerned with the just solution to the problem of displaced Palestinians."

Goodwin added that "we want to see how Jews, Christians and Moslems in the Holy Land relate to each other following the war and what can be done to encourage peace in the area and understanding among all peoples there. We are hopeful that first-hand examination of the problems will furnish insights that we can translate into a proposed course of action for the American Baptist Convention."

Lecturer

In a world that seems menacing, what do people really need to rise above their fears and limitations? This will be the topic of Christian Science lecturer James E. Pike next Saturday, Mar. 16, at 11 a.m. at Los Alamitos High School, 3591 Cerritos Ave. Pike, a decorated Army veteran, was formerly an administrator at Wabash College, Indiana. He will be introduced at the free lecture by Dr. G. L. Shoup, professor of theater arts at Long Beach State University.

Lutheran giving

Members of the American Lutheran Church and the Lutheran Church in America gave $4,108,097 in 1973 for Lutheran World Action, their annual financial appeal for a global program of spiritual and material aid. This exceeded the $3,950,052 LWA goal for the year.

He says. "It will revive itself and become viable, that's a necessity. We're in a transitional period now. Churches will become more and more important, ministering to apartment dwellers, as a home away from home, with all its programs, without the commercialization of private companies."

Herrington, who has had lots of contact with young people, doesn't answer a question about "youth" with the bromide about their being basically sound, though he believes that too.

AS A CHURCHMAN, he has a concern about "avoiding giving overemphasis to youth, to the detriment of others. I don't like separating people by age categories too strictly. All ages can gain from each other. What we want is to get more young people into our total fellowship. Naturally they will do the things they can do best."

When the interview was over, the chairs pushed back and the goodbyes and thank yous said, Aaron Herrington turned and almost apologetically said: "I'd like to get this in, if it's possible. Whatever I've done, I've had the 100 per cent backing of my family. All the time at meetings, our budget in giving, they have sacrificed some things, and have done it graciously. Without their support..." He smiled and shrugged eloquently.

A 7-day mental diet

An interesting and dynamic friend of mine used to be a miserable fellow. I very well recall that in the case of this man, others would come into his presence in more or less jaunty and optimistic frames of mind. But he was a jauntiness-extractor. He threw cold water on optimism. In no time at all he could take all the up-beat out of everyone and drain off optimism as well.

He was super-critical of everyone. He would say of someone, "I try not to say critical things about anybody, but..." There was always a "but". Then the old knife would go in and twist around.

No subject of a positive nature could be broached without his taking a negative position. His natural approach to any question was always negative. Yet, in a way, this man was a good fellow and obviously had real possibilities.

IN THE COURSE of events he moved to another part of the country and I didn't see him for three or four years. And when I did see him again he was a different man.

Asked how he achieved this amazing change, he replied, "I went on a seven-day mental diet."

He explained that someone had given him a little pamphlet called "The Seven-Day Mental Diet" by the late Emmet Fox.

In this pamphlet Fox observed that Americans are diet-conscious from a physical point of view but that it is even more important that we place equal emphasis on the type of thoughts fed into the mind. And he advocated the following "Seven-Day Mental Diet":

Resolve that from a given moment — any minute you select — you will for seven days thereafter watch your every word and, for those seven days, you will not make a single negative or mean or dishonest statement. You will not make an off-color remark for seven days. You will not voice a depressing concept.

Now, of course, that is a big order! A food diet is easy by comparison. "I tried it one day and failed," my friend continued. "I tried it again and went two days before I slipped. It was really hard going. It's difficult to try thinking differently. I tried again another week and made a poor start. Then I became annoyed and determined that I would stubbornly keep at it because I knew I had to change myself or real happiness was out for me."

Finally, I succeeded for one whole week! Not once did I fail. I was so worn out with the effort that I thought I would ease off and slump back a bit into easier ways. But, do you know, actually I couldn't do that. I had achieved a change in myself. I had brought myself up to a higher level. At first I was pretty nervous living on this upper-level basis, but the more I kept at it the more adjusted I became to the new status. Since then life has been altogether different.

That he was indeed different could not be denied.

SUCH MENTAL dieting surely offers great possibilities for self-improvement. It is of course a fact that we are what we think. A mental diet can make a person strong, happy, effective through the simple expedient of changing his thought pattern.

What a challenging test to try on yourself! Can't you afford seven days' effort out of your lifetime to change your life? And any moment is the perfect time for you to begin. The best time to start is now. Why not begin your mental diet today? I will be glad to send you my booklet "Thought Conditions" which is designed to assist in revamping thought patterns. There is no charge. Just send a card to me in care of this newspaper.

Mormon winners

The Cerritos Third Ward girls volleyball team, ages 12-18, undefeated to date in the tournament of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, play in the regional tournament today at Santa Fe Springs, hoping to move on to statewide competition. The ward includes Cerritos, Hawaiian Gardens and part of Lakewood.

CHURCH HUMOR

"The frightening thing is—I'm beginning to believe it!"

GOINGS ON

Rev. and Mrs. Donald Smith, missionaries to Japan who will return soon for a five-year term in that country, will speak Sunday, 6 p.m. in CALVARY LIGHT ASSEMBLY, 2094 Cherry Ave., their home church. Mrs. Smith (Juanita) graduated from Poly High, and both attended Southern California College in Costa Mesa. They have four children, now in Long Beach schools. Japanese songs, curios and costumes will be featured in the mission rally.

David Anderson, director of Lutheran Youth Alive, will be the Lenten guest Wednesday, 7:30 p.m. at IMMANUEL LUTHERAN, 345 Carson St.

Rev. Donald Shelby of San Diego will play a similar role Wednesday at LOS ALTOS METHODIST on East Willow Street.

"Good Grief" is the title of Rev. Joseph Nunziato as he launches a series on how to face death and dying, Thursday, noon, in GRACE UNITED METHODIST, Third and Junipero. All invited to bring sack lunches, coffee will be served.

"Psychic Self Defense," a continuation of the discussion on The Exorcist, will be presented Sunday, 3 p.m. by Dr. Stephan Hoeller at THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY, in the YW building, Sixth and Pacific.

Helen Smith of this newspaper's Action Line staff will speak Thursday, 10:30 a.m. to the Christian Women's Fellowship at FIRST CHRISTIAN, Fifth and Locust, with visitors welcome.

Palestinian rights held key

"To achieve lasting peace with justice in the Middle East it is imperative to assert the legitimate rights of the Palestinians and to urge the immediate implementation of these rights," according to the executive committee of the World Council of Churches.

A statement on the Middle East issued by the committee at the conclusion of its five-day meeting in Bad Saarow, German Democratic Republic, said "The Palestinians should be guaranteed official status on all levels and formal opportunity to express their view freely about their future."

The statement recalled that the WCC Central Committee meeting in Canterbury in 1969 had stressed the need for "both redressing the injustice done to the Palestinian people as well as providing guarantees for the existence of the State of Israel in the context of the implementation of the appropriate United Nations resolution."

Noting that current negotiations have given new hope for resolving the conflicts in the Middle East, the Executive Committee said: "It is of the first importance that the rights of the Israeli Jews and the implementation of the rights of the Palestinians should not lead to injustice to either people."

Scholars pass idea to churches

Papacy no longer bar to unity, say Lutherans

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Theological descendants of Martin Luther, the 18th century German priest who sparked the Protestant break from papal leadership, say conditions are ripe for restoring that connection in a new style now in sight.

The idea will startle many Christians, say a team of Lutheran scholars.

But they contend that under changed circumstances and understandings of the present, Lutheran "recognition of papal primacy is possible" and Lutheran churches should consider affirming it in behalf of united work for Christ.

That appeal to Lutherans from their theological representatives went out in the wake of last week-end's historic agreement by a joint U.S. Lutheran Catholic commission that the hard lines of the old papal issue have dissolved.

It no longer is "a barrier to reconciliation," the commission said.

In addition to that landmark finding, both the 13 Lutheran and 13 Roman Catholic participants issued separate explanations to their own denominational folds to help them see the basis for the new outlook.

Calling it a "major advance" toward resolving a historically divisive issue, the Catholic participants said it could be a "prelude to a new relationship" between the churches, and urged their church deal with the new situation.

A Lutheran participant, Rev. George A. Lindbeck, of Yale University, comments: "It is now up to the churches to indicate how far they want to go in implementing it."

So far, prior agreements by official Catholic

Lutheran and Catholic Anglican Episcopal theological teams on holy communion, the early creeds and the ministry, have not been acted on by the churches themselves.

Their leaders say the findings need first to be assimilated by ordinary members — a process the current separate reports sought to aid.

Even though founding Protestant reformers hurled such denunciations as "antichrist" at the papacy of their day because of the way it functioned with state power to impose its authority, the Lutheran experts point out:

"Today, after over four centuries of mutual suspicion and condemnation... we need to remember that the earliest Lutherans hoped for a reform of the papacy precisely for the sake of seeing the unity of the church preserved."

Signs of such reform now are in evidence, including Catholicism's greater stress on Bible sources and shared collegiality in church government, putting the issue into a "new perspective," the Lutheran scholars say.

For example, Roman Catholic participants

So, Baptists ask Holy Spirit study

"By My Spirit" is the theme of the West Coast Bible Conference of the Southern Baptist Convention at Los Angeles International Hotel Monday through Thursday.

The theme was chosen, says Pastor Levi Price of Narbonne Avenue Baptist Church of Lomita, after a poll indicated that Baptists wanted to study biblical teachings on the Holy Spirit more than all other subjects combined.

point out that in contemporary understanding, the Pope does not have the autocratic authority of a monarch, but his role is primarily as one who "serves" the church.

"We share the concern of our Lutheran partners in dialogue that safeguards should be provided against violation of Christian rights and freedom on the part of all ecclesiastical authority, papal included," the Catholic scholars say.

They suggest that while Lutherans presumably could not take the same position toward the Pope as currently held by Catholics, a distinct canonical status could be worked out so Lutherans could recognize the papacy as a symbol of unity, while remaining self-governing.

The Lutheran participants note that even in the era of the Protestant split with Rome, Lutheran thinkers conceded that in the New Testament, a preeminent role was held by the apostle Peter, a role from which the papacy evolved.

"Critical as we Lutherans have been in our evaluation of papal history," they say, "the existence of the papacy has in many ways been beneficial" in expressing and nurturing "visible unity of the church" in a world of divisive non-Christian forces.

The Lutheran group adds that a "renewed papacy," with Protestants in communion with it, "would in fact foster faithfulness to the gospel and truly exercise a Petrine function within the church."

McCord charges Nixon concealed payoff evidence

WASHINGTON (UPI) — James W. McCord Jr., one of the original Watergate defendants, has charged President Nixon "deliberately concealed and suppressed" evidence in violation of law at the time the scandal began to unravel in March, 1973.

In an open, three-page, heavily edited letter received by UPI Friday, McCord said Nixon failed to inform the courts that John W. Dean III had told him hush money had been paid to the defendants.

MCCORD SAID had Nixon made these facts known, the convictions of the original seven defendants would have been overturned.

McCord's letter — which was verified by his attorney, Bernard L. Fensterwald, although he said he did not know about it in advance — referred to Nixon's news conference Wednesday night in which the President told of his talk with then White House Counsel Dean on March 21, 1973.

In his reply to reporters, Nixon said of his conversation with Dean:

"...And for the first time, on March the 21st, he told me that payments had been made to the defendants, for the purpose of keeping them quiet, not simply for their defense. If it had been simply for their defense, that would have been proper, I understand. But it was for the purpose of keeping them quiet — you describe it as hush money — that, of course, would have been an obstruction of justice. I examined him at great length. We examined all of the options at great length..."

AT HIS Aug. 15, news conference Nixon said that during his March 15 conversation with Dean and White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman, "I was only told that the money had been used for attorneys' fees and family support, not that it had been paid to procure silence from the recipients."

McCord, security officer for the Committee to Re-elect the President, was the electronics expert on the bugging team that entered the Democratic offices in the Watergate complex June 17, 1972.

After he was found guilty, his letter to Chief U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica on March 23, 1973, charging that perjury had been committed at his January trial, helped spark a renewed grand jury investigation.

"PRESIDENT Richard Nixon made an astounding admission last night," McCord said in his letter. "President Richard (sic) admitted last night that John Dean told him that payments had been made to the Watergate defendants for the purpose of keeping them quiet..."

McCord said that technically, the trial still was in progress at the time.

"President Nixon neither immediately made known to the Judge Sirica, nor to his attorney general, nor to the director of the FBI, nor to the prosecutors, the obstruction of justice information given him by Dean on March 21st," McCord said.

"HAD PRESIDENT Nixon either immediately furnished the information to Judge Sirica or ordered Dean to immediately do so, my claim to Judge Sirica in my letter of political pressure on the defendants to remain silent would have been immediately corroborated and all seven convictions or pleas would have had to be thrown out on the same grounds that Judge (W. Matt) Byrne dismissed his (Ellsberg's break-in) case."

"Yet President Nixon has deliberately concealed and suppressed from me and the court for one year the facts made known last night," McCord said.

In other developments:

—Seven of Nixon's closest former associates will be arraigned today in U.S. District Court as a result of their indictment one week ago on charges of conspiracy and lying.

—The Senate Watergate Committee heard testimony in private from Richard C. Helms, former director of the CIA and now ambassador to Iran.

—In a brief filed in the U.S. Court of Appeals for expeditious handling of its suit to get Nixon's tapes, the Senate committee said White House lawyers were not following the President's wish for prompt conclusion of the Watergate affair by their attempts to slow the proceedings.

NIXON TAXES

"checked over his controversial 1969 tax return, page by page, before signing it," Anderson said. Nixon's accountant had given the joint congressional committee documents showing that Nixon "took a personal interest in taking every possible tax deduction."

Mills, who announced he is seeking election to a 19th term, reiterated to newsmen that he would "hate to see" a presidential impeachment, but he thought that the President should resign.

"I have talked to some key Republican members of Congress who say that if he is still in office by the month of June, they will ask him to resign," Mills said.

Asked if he thought Nixon had committed any impeachable offense, Mills said he did not think any had been proven so far.

"I don't think they have proven any connection (with Watergate). They may have come up with something (in the sealed grand jury report) that I don't know about."

Asked then, why the President should resign, Mills said, "I can't say. I know, but I won't say. You'll know about it in some 30 or 40 days."

Pressed further, Mills said, "if the President should have to pay several thousand dollars (in taxes owed)...those I have talked to are dissatisfied with the President's handling of his tax returns."

The Joint Committee on Internal Revenue and Taxation, of which Mills is cochairman, is studying the President's tax returns for the years 1969, 1970, 1971 and 1972.

"The big question is the deduction of the value of the papers he gave," Mills said. "Such deductions for presidential papers and other items were no longer valid after July 25, 1969."

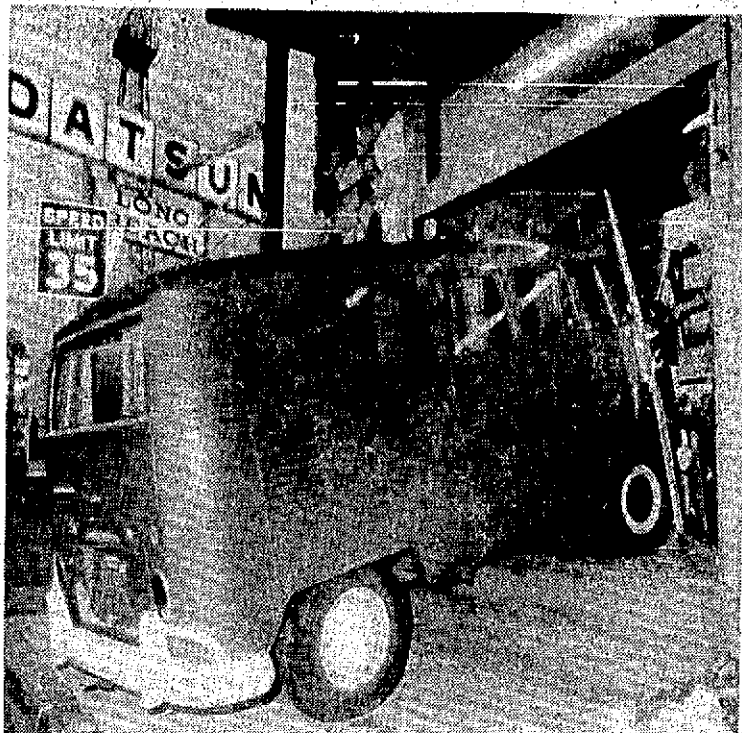

"Did he actually complete the gift prior to July 25, 1969?"

Mills said he had a "feeling" about the question, "but I'm not going to express it, no."

Asked if he believed the release of this report will give more impetus to the President's resignation than the Watergate scandal, Mills replied, "yes, I do."

Mills, 64, was interviewed in a hospital where he was recuperating from a back ailment. He underwent surgery last August for a ruptured spinal disc which threatened to end his congressional career.

He said he believes his health is up to another term. He had been hospitalized for tests and therapy since Feb. 19.

The wayward bus

Volkswagens don't ordinarily drop into a Datsun dealership for a social call, but this bus did when its driver, John Harvell, of Long Beach inadvertently plowed into the showroom at 3400 Long Beach Blvd. Friday afternoon. Harvell, who was not injured, told police he was turning left onto Long Beach Boulevard from Wardlow Road when the bus inexplicably went out of control.

12 aliens, driver killed in immigration van crash

OCOTILLO (AP)—A U.S. Immigration Service van carrying aliens for deportation to Mexico slammed into the rear of a parked truck Friday, killing the van's driver and 12 aliens, the California Highway Patrol said.

Officials at El Centro Community Hospital said the other six persons in the van were in critical condition.

The van, driven by an Immigration Service detention officer, was traveling about 50 miles an hour in high winds when it ran off Interstate 8 and struck the rear of a refrigerated truck parked at a rest stop on the shoulder, the patrol said.

The van didn't overturn and there was no fire, the patrol said. The driver of the parked truck was not hurt.

The border patrol said the passengers, all men, had been arrested recently for being in the U.S. illegally. They were being transported from El Centro to Chula Vista, near San Diego, where they were to be deported.

The highway patrol said the crash happened just north of the Mexican border, and about 45 miles west of El Centro.

The detention officer killed in the crash was identified as Albert Feld of El Centro. The other victims were not immediately identified.

It was the second major highway traffic accident in the area this year. Nineteen Mexican farm laborers were killed in January when their bus left the highway near Blythe, 140 miles north-east of here, and plunged into an irrigation ditch.

At least 8 injured in ski lift mishap at Squaw Valley

SQUAW VALLEY (AP)—At least eight persons were injured Friday in a ski lift accident at Squaw Valley, a spokesman for Squaw Valley lodge said.

Two were hospitalized at Washoe Medical Center for undetermined injuries, after being taken first to Tahoe Forest Hospital at Truckee, said Hans Von Nolde. At least six others were treated for cuts and bruises at Squaw Valley's own medical center.

At Truckee, a nurse at the Tahoe Forest emergency room said, "We've been treating them all day. We haven't had time to count them."

The injuries occurred when the gear controlling the Exhibition lift slipped and a number of skiers jumped to the snow, Von Nolde said.

The chair lift runs an average 10-15 feet above the snow, he estimated.

Von Nolde said that when the gear slipped, "The chairs rolled back a couple of feet. Some people jumped from the lift, not too far off the ground. There was a lot of snow. Things were not too bad."

A brake automatically stopped the lift after the gear slipped, Von Nolde said, "but some of those people apparently panicked and started to jump out."

Most landed safely and skied down the hill without trouble, he said.

Gas station bombed in rollback demand

LOS ALTOS (AP)—A gasoline station was hit by a small explosion Friday, and a terrorist group claimed it was their second attack in as many days to back up demands for a rollback in gas prices.

No one was injured in either incident.

The San Francisco Chronicle said it received a telephone call from someone who claimed responsibility for the 3:15 a.m. explosion, saying it was the work of a group called "Americans for Justice."

AN EMPTY tank at a Shell Oil Co. distribution center in nearby San Jose was damaged by a 2 a.m. blast Thursday, followed by a call to the Chronicle which claimed the same group had planted an explosive.

A letter given the newspaper after the first explosion said there would be more violence if Shell refused demands for free gasoline for poor Californians over 65 and a rollback of pump prices.

"If we hear no reply within 48 hours, we must assume your position and take more far-reaching actions," the letter warned.

Hot line planned for runaway teens

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. (AP)—A toll-free telephone hot line to give runaway teen-agers around the nation a chance to let parents know their whereabouts is planned for June, federal officials said Friday.

Officials said a six-month pilot project will be funded by a $100,000 grant from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Julia A. Vadala, deputy assistant secretary for human development at HEW, said a runaway will be able to "contact a neutral person and have that person get in touch with their parents."

"That way the kid doesn't have to call home and go through the hassle of talking directly with his parents," she said.

If they wish, teen-agers will be allowed to call home without using a third party, she said. Hot line workers will be able to provide information on shelters, drugs and health care.

Miss Vadala estimated some 600,000 teen-agers run away from home each year.

"We don't want it to be an establishment hot line, so the kids don't think they are calling the 'feds,'" she said.

Only President can grant amnesty, Congress told

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The administration told Congress Friday that only the President has the power to grant amnesty and it opposes congressional action on any of the bills offering to ease the plight of Vietnam war resisters.

The administration's continued hard line on the amnesty question, as often laid down by President Nixon, was outlined by Dep. Asst. Atty. Gen. Al Ulman and Selective Service System general counsel Walter H. Morse in the opening day of three days of hearings by the House subcommittee on courts, civil liberties and the administration of justice.

THE subcommittee, chaired by Rep. Bob Kastenmeier, D-Wis., has seven bills and two resolutions before it that cover the whole range of issues on the amnesty question from draft resisters to deserters and military men less than honorably discharged because of their actions.

Ulman told the subcommittee that it was the Justice Department's opinion that each of the bills had "serious constitutional defects."

"The courts have held specifically that Congress does not have the power to interfere with the exercise by the President of his authority to grant pardons or amnesty," Ulman said.

BUT the American Civil Liberties Union took issue with Ulman's interpretation of the law.

Henry Schwarzschild, director of the ACLU's project on amnesty, said both court rulings and American history suggest Congress does have the power to grant amnesties.

"Our historical experience and the United States Supreme Court agree that the Congress of the United States also has a concurrent power to enact amnesty legislation," he said.

The ACLU called for a blanket and unconditional amnesty.

Navy criticized for ignoring A-power

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Adm. Hyman G. Rickover accused United States naval leaders Friday of "lack of foresightedness" in refusing to convert the fleet to nuclear power in the face of dwindling oil reserves.

"Those outside the professional ranks, such as the press, citizens and Congress can recognize the danger of such blindness," he asserted.

The 74-year-old Rickover, a Russian-born engineer who steered the U.S. Navy into the nuclear age, made the charge at the San Diego Press Club.

"Perhaps by the next century, the Navy itself will finally realize the importance of nuclear power, but this is not yet the case," the admiral said.

The dependence of U.S. ships on oil "is a sad commentary on the lack of foresightedness of all but a few of our naval leaders over the past quarter-century," he declared.

Rickover cited figures he said show that the lifetime costs of a nuclear Navy exceed only slightly those of conventional power while "a nuclear task force is at least 50 per cent more effective."

Coastal panel in grab bag meet

By KRIS SHERMAN
Staff Writer

Regional coastal commissioners will meet at 9 a.m. Monday in the Long Beach Harbor Department to consider a grab bag of requests for permission to build within the Los Angeles-Orange County coastal zone.

Though the panel's agenda lists 112 items for consideration, 92 of those are on the consent calendar and will be approved on one motion unless three commissioners request a specific item be removed from the calendar. If an item is removed, it will receive a full public hearing before commissioners vote on it.

There are several Long Beach, San Pedro and Huntington Beach items on the consent calendar, which carries the bulk of local applications to be considered Monday.

Most of the consent calendar items deal with apartment houses, single-family dwellings and minor maintenance construction, while the only local items scheduled for public hearing are public works projects.

Those applications, all by the Los Angeles Bureau of Engineering, ask permission to install sewer and lift stations in Wilmington and Terminal Island.

Youth training program 'tilts'

By VINT MADER
Staff Writer

Participation in a Southern California interracial youth training program "has swung predominantly to minority groups in the last few years," the director of the National Conference of Christians and Jews project told a meeting aboard the Queen Mary Friday.

The summer training camps, begun 24 years ago, were overattended by white youth in past years, but now need greater numbers of "Anglo boys, along with Indians and Asians," Bernice Van Steenberg, NCCJ Los Angeles youth director, told the Southern California Association of Human Relations Directors.

Founded as a result of racial tensions at Los Angeles High School in 1950, the coeducational seminars at mountain sites carry five-unit summer school credit in Los Angeles, Long Beach, Compton and Santa Monica school districts. The seven-day sessions cost $50, "which is not much as campships go, but is too much for some kids we know," she said.

JULIUS KLEIN, vice chairman of the Los Angeles County Human Relations Commission and an advisor to the NCCJ, said the young seminar participants first "begin to develop cracks in their stereotypes" when they join 100 other students of high school age at a camp.

At its end, Klein said, each student has been helped through "the agony of diffidence that each teenager has about himself and his relationship in society."

In other reports, Alex Smith, association chairman and human relations director of Inglewood, told the meeting of discussions with California city managers last month in Newport Beach to develop social services as part of city master plans. Clarence Webb, Pomona community resources coordinator, reported on a Riverside meeting between human relations commissioners and staff directors from throughout California.

Anti-high-rise body slates L.B. meeting

Beach Area Concerned Citizens, a group formed primarily to battle high-rise construction along East Ocean Boulevard, will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Belmont Shore Lions Club, 5107 E. Ocean Blvd.

A spokesman said members of the group, which is open to all Long Beach residents, are circulating petitions asking that Ocean Boulevard be down-zoned from R-5 (high-rise) to something that would require projects of less density.

The petitions also ask that the city extend Bluff Park — the greenbelt along the south side of Ocean Boulevard from 20th Place to Redondo Avenue — eastward from Redondo Avenue to 36th Place.

Since the group was formed last fall, members have successfully battled the construction of some high-rise condominiums in the area. But those projects, which were denied by the regional coastal commission, will be reconsidered when the firm of Sasaki-Walker Associates finishes its coastline study for the city.

The spokesman said stated objectives of the group are "to preserve the existing beauty and character of our ocean front area."

Volunteer tax guides offer assistance today

Help with federal and state income tax forms is available today and for the next five Saturdays at the Long Beach Community Improvement League for senior citizens, the unemployed and persons with low incomes.

Volunteer tax assistants from the public accounting firm of Touche Ross & Co., will be at the league offices, 555 E. Pacific Coast Highway, from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. for each of the days, according to James E. Reeves, executive director of the CIL.

Persons who need assistance are requested to bring their W-2 forms, 1973 returns and their itemized deductions.

The service is provided by the Child Care Center Advisory Board of the Child Care Center, which is operated by the league. Reeves said those who utilize the service are asked to make a $4 donation.

Japanese language course

The latest addition to the wide assortment of languages taught in ABC Unified School District's Adult School is a new course in reading and writing Japanese. The school already offers classes in Russian, Dutch, Spanish, French, Norwegian, Hebrew, Italian and Portuguese. The latest entry is available on Tuesdays and Wednesdays from 6:30 to 10 p.m. in Room 10 at Artesia High School, 12108 E. Del Amo Blvd.

TUMPEY THE CLOWN rubs noses with a young admirer. It's his way of telling her that the DeWayne Brothers circus is coming to Long Beach Arena March 30 under the sponsorship of the Belmont Shore Optimist Club.

Hey, kids — free circus tickets

Hey, kids, any takers for 30,000 free circus tickets offered by the Belmont Shore Optimist Club?

The club's annual Youth Circus, featuring the DeWayne Brothers Circus, will be held March 30 at 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. in the Long Beach Arena — and chairman LeRoy G. Harrison is especially interested in providing the free tickets to groups of exceptional, handicapped and underprivileged children.

Harrison may be contacted at 5547 E. Second St.

Tickets also are available at Alan's Shoes, 5225 E. Second St.

The ticket costs are being underwritten by merchants in Long Beach and adjacent communities, Harrison said. Profits support the Optimists' Boys' Club work in Long Beach. A share also is assigned to the Optimist Home for Boys, Los Angeles.

So kids, if you like clowns, lots of animals, aerialists, jugglers, trampoline artists and supersmart dogs, get in line. That's the ticket!

ABC School District seeks replacement for cut in fuel

By RALPH McCLURG
Staff Writer

Officials of the ABC Unified School District, which was informed earlier this week its fuel supplies have been cut by more than 50 per cent, said Friday they are seeking another supplier.

In the meantime, officials said they are awaiting a special fuel allocation and will eliminate most extracurricular trips to compensate for the loss, which amounts to 9,600 gallons of gasoline and 750-1,150 gallons of diesel fuel for the month.

CHARLES LAIZURE, the district's transportation supervisor, said he anticipates no interruption in home-to-school busing for students. He said officials have been notified by telephone the special allocation was approved. He added, however, the district still is awaiting written confirmation.

The fuel supply cutbacks, announced by the Los Angeles County Superintendent of Schools, were ordered after Shell Oil Co., the county's gasoline supplier, was told to share its crude oil supplies with other companies, Laizure said.

The ABC District, which covers Artesia, Bloomfield and Carmonita, will receive fuel allocations equivalent to 60 per cent of what it used in March 1972.

Laizure said the district currently uses some about 1,800 gallons of diesel fuel and 18,000 gallons of gasoline each month. During March, district vehicles have available only 650 gallons of diesel fuel and about 8,500 gallons of gasoline, he said.

However, the reduction in fuel supplies does mean an immediate end to all field trips, many athletic trips and a general attitude of belt-tightening.

GUIDELINES expected soon from the County Superintendent of Schools also may limit other programs, including driver training classes, he said.

The neighboring Bellflower Unified School District, which has storage capacity for a two months' fuel supply, has not yet experienced any shortages, said business manager John Edwards.

"However," he said, "we may run into difficulties in a couple of weeks when we have to order a new supply. The district uses approximately 5,000 gallons of gasoline and 500 gallons of diesel oil a month."

In addition to the pending special fuel allocation, county officials told the ABC district the county will appeal to state and federal agencies for enough fuel to keep the school buses rolling. If county officials are successful, Bellflower also would be in line for more fuel.

Scouts receive building permit

A special permit for construction of a one-story addition to the existing training center of the Long Beach Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, at 4747 Daisy Ave., has been approved by the Long Beach Planning Commission.

The training center is on the Boy Scouts' 10.5-acre camping area, which is on the west side of Los Angeles River and north of the Union Pacific Railroad right-of-way.

A special permit was required because the facility is zoned R-4 residential.

Transport plan 'Dial-a-bus' system for L.B. eyed

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

Creation of a traffic and transportation authority for Long Beach and establishment of a "dial-a-bus" system, at least on a trial basis, are proposed in a report scheduled Monday for the city's Bureau of Franchises.

The bureau will meet at 9:30 a.m. in the City Hall council chamber.

The report is by Louis Possner, chief engineer of the bureau, who said a transportation authority would give "planning and engineering capability" to the local transit system.

By having the authority members selected as representatives of various community groups — such as education, senior citizens and business — it also would provide "broad-based community representation in transportation decision making," Possner said.

HE SAID he would anticipate the authority making "innovative changes" in the local transportation system. Among them would be uniform one-zone fares, transfer privileges with connecting systems, schedule changes to fit working hours, express buses from outer limits of the city and neighborhood circulatory systems.

Special sightseeing and cultural bus services, expansion of special service for industry and schools and weekly, monthly and special passes also could be introduced, he said.

On the matter of the "dial-a-bus" service, Possner said various of these "demand-type" systems have been placed into operation throughout the country with varying success.

Much still is to be learned about such systems, Possner said, but experience indicates they can be used effectively in "relatively small areas of 12 square miles or less. Studies indicate the public is willing to pay about 50 cents a ride for such service.

Once a transportation authority is formed, Possner said, he would recommend that the operating area be divided into sections of approximately 12 square miles each, and that "dial-a-bus" systems be started on a trial basis in each section.

"IT IS ENVISIONED that such a system, connected by an efficient, fast fixed-route system, and giving frequent service, could be used by many persons who are now driving their automobiles — including many city employees on city business," Possner said.

Operation of demand service in other areas indicates that it ultimately would require computer and sophisticated communication capabilities, he said.

Possner admitted that the "dial-a-bus" service might cut into business now served by taxicabs, but said also, it might help them by reducing short hauls.

Once group demand service is started, Possner said, the city should keep a careful watch on taxicab operation with the possibility in mind of eliminating city regulation to the extent of permitting competition and non-regulated fares.

Sam Vickers dies in Mexico

SAM VICKERS, former Long Beach city manager, died of an apparent heart attack Friday in Taxco, Mexico, his brother, Charles, said.

The former city manager was vacationing with his wife, Helen, when the attack struck, his brother said. Funeral arrangements were pending Friday night.

Sam Vickers was born in Ethan, S.D. in 1908. He trained as an engineer, and took a job with the State of California.

LATER he was appointed to the state Public Utilities Commission. It was while he was serving as a commissioner that city fathers first asked him to fill the city manager post.

With his appointment Jan. 3, 1944, he became the 13th Long Beach city manager in 22 years, and the sixth manager in the previous eight years.

The precarious nature of the city manager's job in those days was brought home to Mr. Vickers on Oct. 29, 1946, when five councilmen voted to fire him because of inadequate cooperation with councilmen.

The firing, less than a month after the council had given Mr. Vickers a vote of confidence, created a political uproar. Councilmen who voted for his ouster were later recalled, and the city charter was revised to give the city manager a degree of tenure.

Mr. Vickers took the post of Vallejo city manager, until Long Beach councilmen hired him back July 1, 1949.

His second term of office as Long Beach city manager ran to February, 1961, when he left to take the job of city manager in Phoenix, Ariz.

Three and a half years later he left the Phoenix managership and journeyed to Saudi Arabia, where he headed Ford Foundation projects.

LATER HE joined Arizona State University at Tempe as a political science instructor. He also headed the university's center for urban studies.

In recent years he had acted as a consultant to city governments in the Southwest, his brother said.

Funeral arrangements are pending.

Radio stolen

A radio valued at $350 was taken from a motor home belonging to Samuel Atkins, 2650 Easy Ave., by burglars who forced a window and ransacked the vehicle while it was parked in the 200 block of Anaheim Street, Long Beach police said Friday.

Long Beach City College blood drive set March 22

The Long Beach City College is out for blood — 310 pints of it.

The college's blood donor station will be operating in the Liberal Arts Campus cafeteria Mar. 22 in hopes of getting that much blood for the use of college personnel during the next year.

Volunteers can make appointment through the Associated Men Students Office at the college.

Freed Mafioso son may work on penal reform

By JOHN SHEEHAN
Staff Writer

Thirty-nine months after he was quietly ushered into Terminal Island prison, Salvatore "Bill" Bonanno Friday walked through the gate of the federal institution—alone, undaunted and free.

Bonanno, the 41-year-old eldest son of retired Mafia don Joseph Bonanno, known in the underworld as "Joe Bananas," had done his time—two sentences totaling five years for credit card fraud and extortion.

A steady rain that beat the beige prison walls since Thursday night lifted moments before the neatly dressed and well-groomed Bonanno walked out, carrying only a small briefcase, a tennis racket and his release papers.

Dressed tastefully in a subdued red sportcoat and blue slacks, Bonanno laughed and chatted with newsmen for about 15 minutes, telling them his life was taking a new direction which might include working for penal reform.

HE SURPRISED reporters by saying that rather than being picked up by friends, he intended to ride a bus to downtown Long Beach to shop before catching a plane to San Jose where he would rejoin his wife, Rosalie, and their four children.

Bonanno said his next move would be Monday when he would report to his parole office.

Bonanno's release Friday held special significance for him—it was his daughter Felippa's 10th birthday.

BONANNO and code-fendant Peter Notaro were convicted Nov. 14, 1968, of conspiracy, mail fraud and perjury by a New York federal court jury. Bonanno was found guilty on all 53 counts of a grand jury indictment stemming from his use of a Diner's Club credit card belonging to Don A. Torillo, a Queens County real estate broker.

The government charged Bonanno with one count of conspiracy, two of perjury and 50 of mail fraud.

In 1971, Bonanno and his 29-year-old brother, Joseph Jr., were found guilty in San Jose on five counts of extortion and one of conspiracy in connection with the 1970 collection of a $2,900 debt from Robert Piper, a San Jose pilot. A one-year prison sentence for that charge was added to Bonanno's four-year federal term.

Notaro was convicted on all conspiracy and mail fraud counts but acquitted of the one perjury count he faced. Bonanno was sentenced to four years in prison and a $10,000 fine. Notaro was sent to prison for one year and fined $1,000.

THE government's case against the defendants was a charge they used Torillo's credit card without his permission to finance a cross-country trip from New York to Arizona in the last days of the so-called "Banana War," an underworld feud for control of the father's crumbling empire.

Almost all the interest in Bonanno was generated by "Honor Thy Father," a meteoric best seller written by Gay Talese, a former New York Times reporter who lived with Bonanno during the four-year feud.

The book not only bared the life of three generations of Bonannos, but included vivid descriptions of more than two dozen major mafiosi, among them Vito Genovese, Lucky Luciano, Santo Trafficante Jr. and Joseph Profaci. Bill Bonanno's wife is Profaci's niece.

At the time of his father's mysterious 19-month disappearance at the height of the "Banana War," Bill commanded an estimated 300 "soldiers" in Joseph Bonanno's fast-disintegrating "family." At least six persons were killed and police said there were twice as many public shootings and a score of bombings in New York and Arizona.

THE VIOLENCE of the mid-60s "Banana War" was rivaled only by the blood-letting during the Gallo brothers-Joe Colombo feud in the early 70s.

At the time of Bonanno's trial in 1968, Torillo was under investigation by the Internal Revenue Service. Charges against him were dropped following his testimony against Bonanno.

Bonanno insisted the Diner's Club card was voluntarily given by Torillo to Sam Perone, Bill's chauffeur and bodyguard who supervised some of the "family's" bookmaking operations in New York.

Perone was never called to testify. He was shot to death in New York March 12, 1968, by two men who have not been apprehended. Perone was posthumously named a coconspirator but not a defendant.

The conspiracy charge was leveled because the government said Bonanno and Notaro entered into an agreement to commit crime—use the card without Torillo's permission. Mail fraud was actual use of the card, a federal offense because bills for purchases were sent through interstate mail.

Total value of purchases made while Bonanno held the card was about $1,500. Bonanno Friday made a point of saying that charges in similar cases were declared unconstitutional last year by the U.S. Supreme Court.

IN TALESE'S book, nonfiction written as a novel, the author insisted that Bill was considered something of an eccentric by his father's underworld associates, a privileged product of prep schools and a Southwestern university.

Bonanno attended the University of Arizona in Tucson where he majored in agricultural engineering but failed to graduate. Instead, he cast his lot with his father's organization, already rife with internal feuds aimed at deposing the ailing don.

BONANNO, who has said little about himself, was described by Talese as a mid-century Renaissance man caught among "ethnic progression and dying tradition."

First approached Friday in the prison lobby, Bonanno affably said he was willing to talk but only outside. Stepping from beneath a canopy over the prison entrance and feeling a rainy mist on his pale face, Bonanno wryly noted, "Now I'm truly outside!"

Emphasizing that his life was taking "a new direction," Bonanno said he plans to write and lecture for the balance of the year. After that, "who knows?" he said.

He declined comment on his 69-year-old father, living in seclusion in Tucson, or on fellow inmate

G. Gordon Liddy, convicted Watergate conspirator.

OF HIS own life and the direction he feels it ought to take, Bonanno said he plans to write and talk about penal reform, "but I don't want to be known as a reformer."

"There's a lot of good people back there," he said, gesturing at the flatly painted prison walls. "They are people who need help—administrators, line officers and inmates."

"If I can just lift the priorities, just a trifle, in the minds of the public about corrections, that's the direction I'd like to go."

"Corrections hasn't failed," he said, "rehabilitation has failed. Corrections hasn't yet been tried."

Asked about the tennis racket he held with ease in his left hand, Bonanno laughingly explained he rediscovered his old college sport while in prison.

"And I'll acknowledge," he said brightly, "that we've even formed a tennis club here at Terminal Island. We're known, as you might suspect, as the T.I. Racketeers."

Did the next president dine here?

NEW YORK — Maybe I had dinner the other night with the next president and maybe I didn't.

If I did, hundreds of others did, too, in the N.Y. Hilton Grand Ballroom, in a Salute to Sen. Jacob Javits. The leading Republican prospects all spoke — including Vice President Ford, former Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and Sen. Charles Percy. Of course if Scoop Jackson or Teddy Kennedy get in in a Democratic sweep, then I didn't have dinner with the next president.

It surely did live up to the Av. of the Americas. There was a special room the press wasn't supposed to be in. While the press was clustered around Rockefeller, I inched toward the forbidden door.

Javits pulled me in and handed me over to his wife Marian. In 30 seconds I was looking up at Vice President Ford, shaking hands, and trying to get him into a discussion of Ohio State and Michigan football.

Out at his dinner table later he was constantly pressing his finger tips together in a way that busy men have.

"I'm here for one of my favorite guys, Jack Javits," Hugh O'Brian said. From the Beautiful People Set were also the Hal Princes, Arlene Dahl, Arlene Francis, the William Levitts and Nathan Cummings. It was jammed. In fact, Percy said, "If you think this is big, you should have seen Jack Javits' bar mitzvah."

Disneyland has its disadvantages. I've taken my kids there so often that all I have to do now is drive past it, and my purse pops open.

Wish I'd Said That: It was Noel Coward's definition of a gentleman: "Someone who can play the bagpipes — but doesn't."

Remembered Quote: "Men come of age at 60, women at 15." —James Stephens.

Earl's Pearls: Regardless of what's said about the gasoline shortage, it will put a lot of people back on their feet. —Ben Berger, Madison, Wis.

Walter Matthau, a devoted father and family man, explained at Joe's Pier 52 that for years he seldom played cards at home: "Show me a home with young children and I'll show you a home where every deck has between 38 and 51 cards."

Strutters in S.F. go over on streets

By NANCY DAY

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — On a cool and clear San Francisco night, the plaintive wail of a trumpet wafts across the nearly deserted Civic Center Plaza.

Then the tempo changes.

"Ain't She Sweet... bopba, bopba... Ain't She Sweet..."

Coming closer, the rapid patter of tapping feet punctuates the chorus.

Past darkened government buildings, limousines and cabs pull up on busy Van Ness Avenue to disgorge elegantly clad patrons for an evening at the Opera House.

But the applause is outside: for the San Francisco Strutters, one of San Francisco's better known troupes of street musicians.

During a recent performance, Jacqueline Portnoy, 24, dressed in blue jeans, work shirt and silver dancing slippers, tapped furiously on a manhole cover, swinging her arms in the seat style of the '40s.

Michael Miller, 28, a poet and former college English teacher, sang and smiled and strummed his guitar.

Lee Keefauver, a veteran of the Buddy Miles Band blew an instrumental chorus on his 1914 trumpet during Jackie's dance interlude.

This night the group gladly accepted contributions tossed in an open banjo case, but they're going legit now, playing the Boarding House where such hot properties as

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: A persistent spirit of independence carries you through the coming year, along with a temptation to let many important matters take care of themselves (which, of course, almost nothing does). Relationships run fairly even and more intimate, with results depending on you as an individual and what you really want in life. This is a year of insight about relationship. Today's natives have a streak of self-indulgence, are usually fascinated by reading.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Some of your own program gets squeezed out by the coincidence of others' "hellos" and "good-byes" without watching time and place. Be philosophical.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Avoid haste, but be prompt to take your accustomed place, perform your share of Sunday customs. Leave as soon as you are sure your responsibilities are picked up by others.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Start early, stay late to see the whole round of community functions. All parties join in to make this one of the liveliest Sundays in recent memory.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Home life doesn't run smooth automatically - you have to be in there pitching. Systematic planning about material concerns proceeds very well late in the day.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): The main trouble is that a variety of stale, left-over activities are available, but there's a lack of access to those things which really interest you.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): If you will only walk placidly through the pattern you have set for yourself, then you are free to leisurely explore a contrasting experience. Get on with it, find out!

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your mental characteristics prevail and you tend to offer rationalizations for matters which are poorly explained that way. Self-acceptance is a wonderful gift.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Do what is expected of you, then seek a quiet place to relax. As the social side draws little more than a blank, meditation is the preferred course today.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accept your taste as being distinctly your own, unlikely to be duplicated anywhere near you. Social activities run to mixed results, perhaps misunderstandings.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You will be able to imagine whatever finishing touches you will need once you check the spaces open for use of such materials. A visitor on the scene complicates your home life briefly.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Self-improvement fits neatly into the day's schedule if you are doing things right. Acquaintances bring useful information. Avoid direct questioning.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Whatever else you do this Sunday, give thanks that your life is going as well as it is. Then get busy to alleviate any inconvenience you feel that you suffer.

Kirk Douglas pulls quite a switch tonight

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

Kirk Douglas, best known for his aggressive, dynamic, personality-plus roles in the movies, pulls quite a switch tonight on television.

In his first straight dramatic part for TV, Kirk plays a Casper Milquetoast type character in the ABC suspense

Major nets win 11 of 55 programming awards

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Institute for Educational Radio-TV here presented 55 awards for achievement in programming Friday, with 11 of them going to the country's major networks.

The National Broadcasting Co. received six awards, four went to the American Broadcasting Co. and one to the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Five awards, in addition, went to Canadian producers. The Saskatchewan Department of Education was honored for "Dreams and Things — Science and the Far Future" and "Come and See", and the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. for

"Please Tell Me That Story Again".

AWARDS also went to the Alberta Schools Broadcast for "Father LaCombe" and The Ontario Educational Communications Authority for "Words are Wild Birds".

NBC was recognized for showing "Street of the Flower Boxes", "What Price Health", "The Incredible Flight of the Snow Goose", "America's Nerve Gas Arsenal", "America" and "The Battered American Marriage".

A panel of six judges selected the winners from a field of 550 entries from commercial and noncommercial broadcasters.

movie "Mousey," airing from 8:30 to 10 on Channel 7.

"Mousey" is the nickname of George Anderson (Douglas), a timid schoolteacher, by his students.

When the biology teacher's 10-year marriage to Laura (Jean Seberg) ends in an ugly divorce proceeding, it leads him to avenge years of frustration and humiliation with a campaign of terror and murder.

Starring with Douglas and Miss Seberg is John Vernon as David Richardson, with whom Laura goes to live with her son. Sam Wanamaker, James Bradford, Bessie Love, Beth Porter and Suzanne Lloyd also have key roles.

The film was shot in Montreal and London.

ANOTHER Burt Reynolds special reaches the tube tonight from 11:30 to 1 on Channel 4.

Titled "Burt Reynolds in Nashville," it is said to be an informal "pickin' and singing party," and is held at the executive residence of Tennessee Gov. Winfield Dunn and wife, Betty. An impressive list of guest stars includes Glen Campbell, Jim Nabors, Roger Miller, Bobby Goldsboro, Charlie Rich, Mel Tillis, Porter Wagoner, Dolly Parton, Minnie Pearl and Rusty Richards. And of course Burt's girlfriend, Dinah Shore, who happens to be from Tennessee, puts in an appearance.

BASKETBALL fans won't want to miss tonight's UCLA-USC game deciding the Pacific-8 Conference championship. KTLA (Channel 5) will carry it, starting at 8:30, and radio station KMPC (710) will provide radio coverage from the Los Angeles Sports Arena.

A first-round doubleheader in the NCAA Basketball Tournament will be televised by NBC (Channel 4) from the Indiana State University gym in Terre Haute, starting at 11 a.m. today. Marquette and Ohio University clash in the opener, with Notre Dame facing Austin Peay at 1 p.m.

Channel 5 will televise the California Angels' exhibition baseball opener against the Oakland A's in Palm Springs at 12:30 p.m. today, and KMPC will cover it on radio.

"EMERGENCY!" the NBC series built around the real-life rescue and emergency medical services of the Los Angeles Fire Department Rescue Unit and the County Hospital Emergency Wing, has managed to survive another year on TV despite being up against the popular "All in the Family" comedy series on CBS.

NBC has announced that the Jack Webb Mark VII production will return for its fourth season in the fall.

"Emergency!" normally airs from 8 to 9 on Saturday nights, but it has been preempted this evening by the three-hour movie "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World."

"ALASKA!," a National Geographic Society special on America's largest state, will be shown from 8 to 9 tonight on KTTV (Channel 11).

The second half of a two-part drama that started Tuesday night on "Marcus Welby, M.D." will air on "Owen Marshall" from 10 to 11 tonight on Channel 7. It involves a paternity suit against Dr. Kiley (James Brolin). "The Mary

LBCB shoots into state finals

By JIM MANGAN
Staff Writer

FRESNO — Ev Ratleff came off the bench to supply the needed momentum Friday night as Long Beach City College survived another case of early jitters to beat Chabot, 80-72, and advance to the finals of the State JC basketball championships.

The Vikings, in the title game for the fourth time in five years, meet Hancock, 68-57, victor over Santa Ana, in the 9 p.m. feature tonight.

Ratleff was a new name in a somewhat shop-worn LBCB victory story in which Dave Hillman kept his team alive early and Dan Frost came on to pick up the pace in the late stages.

The winners had their hands full with No. 2-ranked Chabot, and it was not until Frost scored the first of seven consecutive points that the Vikings were out in front to stay, 50-49, with 13:45 remaining.

It was their first lead since the game was four minutes old.

Tiring Chabot, reluctant to go to its bench, trailed only 55-53 with 9:58 to go, but gradually fell behind as five Vikings scored and the lead was increased to 72-62 with two minutes remaining.

Ratleff, in the words of his coach, Bill Fraser, played his best game in an LBCB uniform, scoring 12 points, showing good defense and "doing everything right that we asked him to do."

The Vikings scored first on a three point play by Hillman, but then were guilty of countless turnovers under their own basket as Chabot controlled the first half.

Only a fine effort by

Title schedule

GAMES TONIGHT
1-Butte vs. Desert (small college third place); 2-Santa Ana vs. Chabot (large college third place); 3-Merced vs. Menlo (small college championship); 4-Hancock vs. Long Beach (large college championship).

Hillman, who scored 14 of his team's first 22 points, kept the Vikings close as the losers twice built five-point leads.

Then Ratleff came off the bench to score three quick baskets—two on his favorite floating layup—and Steve Sinecock tied the score 37-37 with two minutes to go in the initial half.

Chabot quickly pulled out again by four, and Bill Cantwell cut the margin to a single basket just before intermission.

Actually, LBCB was fortunate to be in the game at halftime after many wasted scoring opportunities.

Hillman led his team for the second night in a row, this time with 20 points. Frost had 17 and Sinecock 16.

Mike Peet led all scorers with 21 and Jim Tiefenthaler had 20.

Santa Ana, which plays Chabot for third place at 5 p.m., played catch-up ball the whole game against Hancock after falling behind 19-8 in the early going.

The Dons pulled even at 33-33 as the first half ended, but Hancock went back out in front when play resumed and always had at least a four-point lead.

Paul Lacher had 14 points and Steve Snodgrass 12 in a losing cause.

Santa Ana 33-24-57

Lakers stop Pistons

Goodrich, Price score 31 points

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

Perfection. That was the story of the Laker offense Friday night as they shot a sizzling 59 per cent to whip the Detroit Pistons, 129-113, at the Forum.

In notching their ninth win in the last 10 games, the Lakers remained one-half game behind Golden State in the hot Pacific Division race which has two weeks to run.

The rare one-sided victory was the Lakers' fifth in 12 nights over quality teams — Milwaukee, Chicago, Boston, New York and Golden State.

Detroit, sporting a 46-27 record, had beaten the Lakers four times in a row, twice by lopsided margins. The Pistons never had a chance in this one.

GAIL Goodrich and Jim Price provided most of the firepower, netting 31 points each while hitting 26 of 42 shots. For Price, it matched his career high achieved earlier against Detroit.

Every Laker that played, seven, scored in double figures and only Pat Riley failed to hit at least half his shots. In addition, the Lakers enjoyed a profitable night at the foul line, sinking 25 of 28.

The first quarter was even, 29-29, even though the Lakers connected on 13 of 23 from the field. After that, the Pistons just couldn't keep pace with the expert marksmanship, falling behind by seven at halftime and 14 at the three-quarter mark.

Happy Hairston, playing despite a painful thigh bruise, contributed 12 rebounds, Elmore Smith had six blocked shots and 11 caroms, and Connie Hawkins continued to look like a superstar with superb passing and expert floor leadership.

BILL Bridges was superb again, alternating between center and forward. When he's in the middle, the 6-foot-6 veteran gives the Lakers more perimeter shooting, thus forcing the opposing center farther out to defend.

Detroit employed a half or full-court press, hoping to tire out Goodrich and Price, but the clever Laker guards had no trouble breaking it and winding up with high percentage shots.

When the Lakers get movement in their offense, they are one of the finest shooting teams in the NBA.

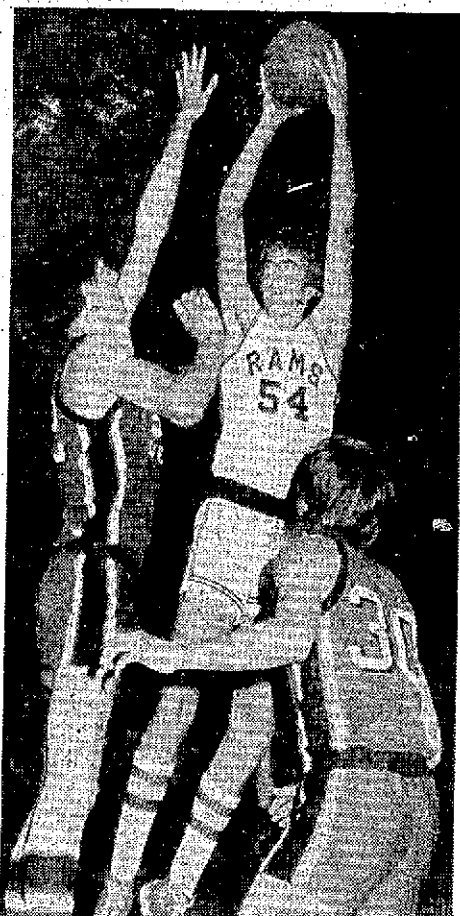

Goodrich and Price are especially proficient driving the middle, a tactic that only works when the ball is being passed around like a hot potato, which it was Friday night, Bob Lanier, a candidate

Rams advance to CIF semifinals

By KEN PIVERNETZ

Wilson High was thought to have the better CIF quarterfinal round draw but it was crosstown rival Millikan that pulled off the big upset Friday night at the Long Beach Arena.

The Rams overcame a 36-point performance from 6-10 junior Bill Laimbeer and rallied to knock off the top-seeded Palos Verdes Sea Kings, 59-53, to leave Moore League fans in a hopeful mood that Wilson would carry the momentum over into the second game. Most of the nightcap momentum, however, was generated by upstart Buena as the Ventura school stopped the Bruins, 60-57, in an exciting game that wasn't decided until the final six seconds.

The victories moved Millikan and Buena into next Friday's semi-finals at the L.A. Sports Arena against opponents that will be decided tonight at the L.B. Arena.

LAIMBEER was too much for the Rams to handle until coach Bill Odell was forced to make a move after his center, Jeff McHugh, came down with his third foul at 3:58 of the second quarter.

Laimbeer at the point had poured in 22 points to stake the Bay League champions to a six-point lead, 31-25.

McHugh was taken off Laimbeer, and 6-2 Greg Casebier, although giving away eight inches, began fronting the 6-10 junior.

The move was enough to spark the Rams to eight quick points on baskets by McHugh, Casebier, Bob Boatright and a tip-in by Rich Davis at 0:02 to put the Rams ahead at half, 33-31.

Laimbeer got his 23rd and 24th points to open the third quarter and give Palos Verdes its last lead.

The turnout of 5,480 saw McHugh counter that basket with one of his own. Dennis June then skied over John Eberhard for two points, was fouled, and got the three-point play to get the Rams on their way, 38-34.

THE RAMS led by nine points, 48-39, after three quarters, and increased it to 10 at 5:42.

Laimbeer, still hounded by Casebier, cooled off considerably in the third quarter, missing five of eight shots. The Sea Kings had no one capable of picking up the slack, Ken Urali, Eberhard and Bill Gregori missing two attempts in the period.

"When no one else was hitting, I knew we had a good chance to win," said

Odell, still showing the effects of a week-long battle with a cold.

Laimbeer was forced to the bench at 1:40 of the third with his fourth foul, and although returning to play the entire fourth quarter, had to ease off.

Laimbeer finished with a game-high 15 rebounds, but the Rams earned a standoff in that department, getting 10 caroms from Boatright.

McHugh led the balanced Ram attack with 15 points, Jeff Peters added 14 and Casebier, playing his second superlative game in relief finished with 12.

WILSON was able to overcome a 2-2-1 press, but lost much of its penetrating offense when Buena, tri-champions of the Channel League, played much of the second half in a 1-2-2, then a 2-3 zone.

Wilson, trailing by five points, 53-48, at 5:23, rallied to draw even at 54-all on a basket by Tom Caserman at 2:53.

Dave Barron broke the tie, then added two free throws at 1:51 to provide a three-point margin, 58-55, that turned out to be the difference.

Joe Stinson got the Bruins to within one point at 1:01, 58-57, but free throws by Greg Stiles and Barron in the last minute accounted for the final points.

Caserman shared high-point honors with Buena forward Bob Lory at 18. Lory and Rich Wood, son of Bulldog coach Bill Wood, outscored Wilson's forwards 34-16 as the Bruins had trouble stopping the baseline drives of either Buena player.

RAIN CLEANS SPORTS SLATE

It's been a good week for umbrella salesmen. With Mother Nature throwing spitfires for the second weekend in a row, most Southern teams struck out Friday in attempts to play baseball or run track.

Baseball coaches John Gonsalves of Long Beach State and Joe Hicks of Long Beach City College led the whiffers.

Gonsalves, still trying to find a new date for the rainout of a Chapman College doubleheader a week ago, lost his Friday night game with USC—it'll be played May 8th—and may lose today's noon twin bill with UC Irvine at Blair Field.

If the 49ers and Antelaters can't play at noon, they'll try again in the evening. If the field remains unplayable, it's back to the schedule board.

Hicks' Vikings failed in their attempt Friday to play a doubleheader with Bakersfield that had first been rained out Thursday. They'll try again March 13. The Vikings also lost their game today, with Pasadena. That one is March 20th now.

Cerritos College, scheduled for an important South Coast Conference baseball series with Santa Ana Friday and today, will have the weekend off.

Track was a little more fortunate. The Tusin Relays were washed away, as were most of Friday's high school meets, LBCC's dual with Pasadena and a competition for 40 LBSU spikers against USC and host UC Santa Barbara today, but a 12-man 49er team will keep its appointment at UC Berkeley with Arizona State and UCLA will host San Diego State and Arizona in a 1:15 p.m. meet.

ATLANTA—Idle until tonight, the Kings pulled out of third place again Friday night as the Atlanta Braves held off the Atlanta Braves 3-1, goalie Phil Myre nighting the opposition to a single goal for the second game in a row.

The loss was the seventh successive winless game for the North Stars, whose only bright spot was Bill Gadsby's 30th goal. Bob Leiter scored his 20th goal for the Flames while Keith McCreary and defenseman Randy Manery filled out the scoring column for the winners.

ABA highlights

INDIANAPOLIS—George McGinnis' 32 points and 15 rebounds helped Indiana beat Memphis, 115-103, Friday night. The Pacers broke loose by scoring nine consecutive points in the second period to build a 59-46 lead at intermission. The Pacers closed to within nine markers, 80-71, before the Pacers widened the margin to as many as 18 points during the home stretch.

UNIONDALE, N.Y.—Artis Gilmore's free throw after a fast-swinging, wrestling match with New York's Wendell Ladner put Kentucky ahead for the first time late in the second period and the Colonels poured it on in the third quarter enroute to a 111-100 win. Teammates just over a month ago, Gilmore and Ladner missed punches after diving for a loose ball at midcourt and then grappled for about a minute before officials could pry them apart. Gilmore scored 24 points and grabbed 27 rebounds on the evening. John Williamson paced the Nets with 24 points while Julius Erving added 22.

SALT LAKE CITY—Hon Boone scored 24 points and Willie Wise 22 as Utah walked to its seventh victory in nine outings this season against Denver, 132-111. Utah went with its bench most of the night, reserves Roy Ebron and Rick Mount totaling 47 points between them.

Northridge tops 49ers

Long Beach State closed out its home gymnastics schedule Friday night by bowing to Cal State Northridge 141.21-136.85 in the campus gym. The 49ers are now 0-6 on the season and will enter the conference meet in two weeks.

Owens insurmountable lead Pacific near swim title

The University of Pacific can claim its third consecutive Pacific Coast Athletic Assn. swimming championship tonight merely by throwing its trunks in the Belmont Plaza Olympic Pool.

The Tigers streaked to an insurmountable 409.5-221.5 lead over host Long Beach State Friday by winning four of the six events contested, finishing one through five in one.

That was the evening's first final, the 400-meter individual medley. The first Tiger to finish was Bob Love, in 4:14.5, and he was soon followed by teammates Dave Kenyon (4:20.5), Steve Lewis (4:21.3), Mason Christ (4:22.6) and Vic Vaughn (4:27.4).

Quake has good effect on Sharks

The earthquake that hit Southern California early Friday evening jarred the Sharks out of the doldrums.

Losers of 15 of their last 16 World Hockey Assn. matches, the Sharks shook, rattled and rolled to a 4-1 triumph over Edmonton before 6,296 disbelieving L.A. Sports Arena fans. The crowd figure was just as disbelieving.

The win ended a six-game toboggan ride as coach Terry Slater's skaters improved their season record to 22-44-0 for 44 points — two behind fifth-place Vancouver.

The defeat cost Edmonton a chance to take over undisputed third place in the WHA West since Winnipeg also lost. The Oilers and Jets remain tied for third with 65 points.

The Sharks never trailed as Brian McDonald beat goalie Jack Norris with his 17th goal at 5:12 of the first period.

Pacific also collected gold medals from Rick Reeder, who won a judges' decision over Fresno State's Ron Roble after they had been clocked in 1:42.6 in the 200 freestyle, from Craig Schwartz, who won the 100 backstroke in a PCAA record 52.8; and from an 800 freestyle relay team of Ken Edwards, Kenyon, Joe Dietrich and Reeder.

There was one other record set Friday night, San Diego State's Dave Robinson doing the honors by finishing the 100 butterfly.

The three-day conference meet ends today with preliminaries at 1 p.m. and tonight at 8 with finals in the 1,650 freestyle, 100 freestyle, 200

Vallandingham-Kan D. Byrd tough to beat

Winning pair heads L.B. Pace

The combination of driver Gene Vallandingham and pacer Kan D. Byrd, nearly unbeatable at the recently concluded Bay Meadows meeting, will take their first tour of Los Alamitos' five-eighths mile track tonight in the featured $7,500 Long Beach Pace.

Post time is 7:45 p.m. Kan D. Byrd, a 6-year-old daughter of Bye Bye Byrd, finished in the money in all eight of her starts at Bay Meadows and put together a streak of four consecutive victories during a one-month stretch late in the meeting.

Her only loss in her last five starts came on closing day at Bay Meadows when Crap Game registered a two-length victory over the 3-2 public choice, Kan D. Byrd, winner of more than $67,000, turned in a yearly best of 2:01 at Bay Meadows after clocking a 1:59.1 last year at Hollywood Park during the Western Harness meeting.

Vallandingham, who ran away with the Bay Meadows driving title with 38 victories, will be back in the bike again tonight on the Neil Kelly-owned and trained mare.

Others in the six-horse field include Ocean Reef, Hoover, Quaker Byrd, Crap Game and Hy Minbar.

Crap game, a sharp 2:03 winner over Bramble Hall, Kan D. Byrd and the highly-regarded Combat Zone on closing day at Bay Meadows will be maneuvered by Jim Grundy, Joe Lighthill took Crap Game to his sharp closing day win at Bay Meadows, replacing Grundy who was serving a five-day suspension, but the latter will be back in the bike tonight.

Crap Game, winner of more than $57,000 during his career, notched three victories during the Bay Meadows meet, defeating Bramble Hall and Kan D. Byrd all three times.

However, Crap Game did take a backseat to Kan D. Byrd in all four of her winning efforts in the north.

Three horses who have not seen action since the Western Harness meet closed at Hollywood Park in early December will

Vivendi, Modue collide

Arriving at the same destination by different pathways, Miss Musket and Modus Vivendi must now resolve the final question in the Santa Anita three-year-old filly division when they clash for the first time in the $58,800 Santa Susana Stakes today at the Arcadia oval.

While B.J. Ridder's Modus Vivendi has been grappling with the giants of the sophomore group in such races as the Pasadena and Santa Ynez Stakes, Miss Musket, owned by Aaron Jones, has defeated all opponents in easier competition.

A chestnut daughter of Gunflint, Miss Musket has won all four of her lifetime starts—by an average of more than seven lengths—and with her last two triumphs coming at the Santa Susana distance of a mile and one-sixteenth, she carries that additional advantage into the race along with her regular rider Bill Shoemaker.

Opposing the two favorites will be eight promising starlets, including a three-filly entry from the Fred Hooper stable and stakes winners Divine Grace and Out To Lunch.

Bwamazon Farm's Quack, the fragile titan whose limited career is already history book material, will set his thundering stretch charge to its most important task against 11 opponents in the $170,000-guaranteed Santa Anita Handicap Sunday.

Among those facing Quack, who carries high-weight of 126 pounds and four-time Big 'Cap winner Don Pierce, will be Strub series hero Ancient Title, San Antonio Stakes titlist Prince Danton, and Tri Jet, winner of the San Pasqual Handicap.

Three-year-old Miradero picked up his third win of the meet with an easy four and one-half length score in the $12,000 Ventura County Fair Purse Friday over stakes-winners Eagle In Flight and Much.

Sent off the 3-5 favorite by 13,153 fans on a rainy afternoon, Miradero paid $3.20, $2.40 and $2.20. Eagle In Flight, second choice in the wagering, returned $3.40 and $2.60.

Woman arrested in murder of friend

A petite insurance company clerk, Edna Palacios, 34, of Los Angeles, Friday formally was accused of murder in the shooting of her friend Sylvia Mora, 28, a dental technician, early Thursday in Harbor City.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Paul Marin issued the complaint in San Pedro after studying evidence compiled by Harbor Division detectives.

The suspect, five feet two inches and weighing 99 pounds, was arrested by officers arriving at Miss Mora's home, 25236 S. Belle Port Ave., Harbor City, after neighbors had heard loud voices and then shooting.

She will remain in custody in San Pedro jail until her Municipal Court arraignment Monday.

Police said they found a .22-caliber pistol on a floor where Miss Mora lay dead of a single bullet wound.

Glenn E. Thomas Asks Why Not? Pay LESS & Get MORE

Fact: The roomy Dodge Dart 6 sells for several dozen dollars less than the VW Super Bug. Dart 6 gets better mileage than Nova 6, Maverick 6, and even Mustang 4 cylinder car. Dart's trunk space is 3 times greater than Pinto's, seats one more in sheer comfort than Vega or any other sub-compact and Dart's electronic ignition can save you an additional $62.00 in future service in the 1st 24,000 miles alone. The Big Difference in 1974 is a Glenn E. Thomas Dart. It's safe, reliable and sensible.

"THE CRISIS IS OVER"

RICHARD M. NIXON

"CRISIS PRICES" STILL GOOD THIS WEEKEND AT YOUR THREE OPEN ROAD RV CENTERS.
WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO RAISE THESE PRICES NEXT WEEK

Where Were You When Gold Was $32 An Ounce?

Our "CRISIS PRICES" are a similar opportunity. Thousands and thousands of California families have been saving for a recreational vehicle, but they've been waiting for the oil embargo to be lifted. These families started buying this week. When the embargo is lifted, this giant reservoir of customers will explode into the RV market place.

We Can Prove That Open Road Sold Over 800 Motorhomes This Week!

PRICES WILL SOAR!
LAST CHANCE NOW

Yes, this weekend may be your last chance to get "Crisis Prices." If the embargo isn't lifted this weekend, we feel it will still be lifted within a very few days. After all 'Big Henry' hasn't failed us yet.

Got an RV To Trade? You Made Money This Week! Maybe you Made $1000!!

Last week, your motorhome, camper or trailer was an orphan. Many dealers wouldn't take it in trade. Even our three Open Road RV Centers had to be a little conservative on your appraisal. Now it's a new ball game. Hundreds of our customers are calling for good RV's. We desperately need your clean used rig, and we'll go for broke to get it, paid for or not. OUR SKY HIGH APPRAISING IS SIMPLY AMAZING

3 Giant RV Centers Freeze "Crisis Prices" This Weekend. 14 Acres of RV's For Sale Now!

Open Road South in Carson, Open Road Anaheim, and Open Road Huntington Beach are ready for the boom. 14 acres of inventory. Giant one stop service, parts and camping equipment center near completion. Complete rental department. No one takes care of you like the Open Road RV Centers. Take advantage of crisis prices even though you're short of cash.

- Let us show you how to "RENT YOUR DOWN PAYMENT"
- Let us show you how to use your pending tax return
- Let us show you many methods of financing.
